

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Thursday, May 18, 1989

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. COELHO].

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,

May 18, 1989.

I hereby designate the Honorable TONY COELHO to act as speaker pro tempore for today.

JIM WRIGHT,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D. offered the following prayer:

Gracious God, as we encounter the difficult problems of our society—the alienation between families and groups, and the confusion in values and purpose and direction, may each of us judge our own lives and discover how and where we may better serve You by serving others. Help us to be aware, O God, of the resources available for our benefit and the benefit of all Your creation. May the faith of every person be so strengthened by the experience of Your grace and overwhelming love, that we may look to the road before us with hearts and minds full of your good spirit and hands eager to do the works of reconciliation and peace. This we pray. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Chair's approval of the Journal.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the Chair's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 284, nays 98, not voting 52, as follows:

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. COELHO). The gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. LANCASTER] will lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. LANCASTER led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Hallen, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed a concurrent resolution of the following title, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. Con. Res. 38. Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional recess or adjournment of the Senate from May 18 or 19, 1989, until May 31, 1989, and the conditional adjournment of the House from May 25, 1989, until May 31, 1989.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2) "An Act to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to restore the minimum wage to a fair and equitable rate, and for other purposes."

FSX, A BAD DEAL FOR AMERICA

(Mr. McNULTY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my strong opposition to the agreement for the United States and Japan to jointly build the FSX fighter aircraft. I believe this deal is bad for America. We must not give away our highly advanced and sensitive technology—nor should we contribute to the establishment of a Japanese aerospace industry that can challenge our world leadership in this field.

As for their assurances that they would safeguard our technology, I hope my colleagues will recall the event of 1983, when Toshiba illegally sold our high-technology metal milling machinery to the Soviet Union. This enabled the Soviets to build quieter submarines and increase their ability to escape radar detection. It was a great blow to our security.

Since the end of World War II, we have done everything possible to help rebuild Japan's economy and transform her into a world economic power, and she has become the worst offender in fair trading practices of any nation today. We have given the Japanese the capability to outpace us in a variety of world markets while they deny us access to their own domestic markets.

Mr. Speaker, we have been subsidizing the defense of Japan for over 40 years. We are currently subsidizing their economy to the tune of $60 billion per year. Japan's relationship with the United States has been all take and no give. I think it is time for Japan to buy American for a change.

POWER SHORTAGES AHEAD FOR THIS SUMMER

(Mr. REGULA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Speaker, I would like to urge each of you to read the article in today's Wall Street Journal captioned: "Get Set To Lose Your Cool This Summer. Power Shortages Expected to Hit Much of the United States, Brownouts and Blackouts, Brace for Them."

It goes on to point out that as we look down the road over the next decade, we are going to be faced with a very substantial shortage of power in the form of electricity, that it will cause economic slowdowns, job loss and so on.

I think the point of all this is that we need to move forward rapidly on clean coal technology. We need to be very careful as we draft clean air legislation to insure that we do not put a chill on the availability of power, that we do not do something that is debilitating to our ability to have the necessary energy in the form of electricity to maintain economic growth and produce the jobs we need.

COMMENDING SECRETARY DERWINSKI ON AGENT ORANGE DECISION

(Mr. LANCASTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LANCASTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Veterans Affairs Secretary Edward Derwinski's decision not to appeal the ruling recently handed down by U.S. District Judge Thelton Henderson.

As some of my colleagues may know, Judge Henderson, a Federal judge in California, recently ruled with a group of Vietnam veterans in a lawsuit to require the Government to recognize that agent orange caused severe health problems, including cancers, heart conditions, skin problems, and infertility.

Members of the Vietnam Veterans of America and the American Legion have long been fighting an uphill battle to obtain justice for veterans exposed to this defoliant during the Vietnam war. The decision confirms that the Government has not done its part to put an end to the suffering from the Vietnam conflict.

The ruling of Judge Henderson requires that the Department of Veterans Affairs put an end to the 10-year denial and now consider compensation claims from veterans. Every denial of an agent orange claim since 1985 must now be reviewed.

Mr. Speaker, the decision by the court, and Mr. Derwinski's decision not to appeal the ruling, are steps in the right direction. Congress must now move ahead with legislation to appropriately compensate these victims of this devastating chemical.

VETERANS AFFAIRS SECRETARY DERWINSKI WARNS OF HEALTH CARE BUDGET CRISIS

(Mr. SOLOMON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, during the discussion yesterday on the supplemental budget, there seemed to be a misunderstanding among some of us as to the position of Secretary of Veterans Affairs Ed Derwinski.

Let me read you a press release put out by Mr. Derwinski last night. It states:

V.A. Secretary warns of health care budget crisis. Secretary of Veterans Affairs Edward J. Derwinski today expressed his grave concern over Congressional failure to act promptly on an emergency supplemental appropriation for current year needs for the V.A. health care system.

Derwinski said, "Unless prompt action is taken, the V.A. will be forced to take measures to cut medical staff and services to veterans across the Nation."

I will remind Members that the Senate is going out today, will be gone for 2 weeks. We are going out next week. There is no opportunity to pass this supplemental if we do not do it now before 12 o'clock today. I urge you on behalf of all the veterans in the veterans hospitals in your district, let us do it today, please.

HAMMADI SHOULD BE EXTRADITED TO THE UNITED STATES

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, yesterday a court in West Germany sentenced convicted hijacker Mohammed Ali Hammadi to life imprisonment for the 1985 murder of United States sailor Robert Stethem.

Mr. Speaker, this is an outrage. How is it that a member of the U.S. Armed Forces can be brutally murdered by a known terrorist and then they give him a slap on the wrist? Because the life sentence will only be after they cut their deal a few short years, and we all know it. They'll let him free.

I agree with the father of that slain officer that America should do everything possible to have West Germany extradite him for trial, and I believe he should receive his just reward, the death penalty.

We provide West Germany with a lot of help, a lot of money, and I think it is time they reciprocate. All we are asking them to do is send the hijacker and murderer, Hammadi, back, and I think the Stethems deserve a lot more justice from America at this point.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION PROMOTING EVOLUTION OF FREE SELF-GOVERNMENT IN PANAMA

(Mr. CRANE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing a House concurrent resolution that is designed to try to promote the evolution of free self-government in the Republic of Panama and simultaneously secure United States interests in the zone and with regard to the Panama Canal.

What it would do is effectively prevent any loss of United States authority and control of the canal in the absence of freely elected democratic self-government in Panama, and this would apply not just to Mr. Noriega, but in the event Mr. Noriega were replaced by a similar gun-toting tinhorn dictator, the same principle would apply. There would be no transfer of U.S. authority or control until they have in place a freely elected government.

I would urge all of my colleagues to get behind this most worthy legislation.

LET US NOT RUSH TO JUDGMENT

(Mr. SKELTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, many in Europe and some here in this country have become euphoric over the pronouncements, the "new thinking," of General Secretary Gorbachev. Some on this side of the Atlantic are even ready to bring American troops home from Europe. They say the cold war is over.

Mikhail Gorbachev recently wrote President Bush that the Soviet Union has not sent arms shipments to Nicaragua since January. However, it appears that some 28 shipments from the U.S.S.R. have reached Nicaragua through April. Despite Mr. Gorbachev's "new thinking," old habits seem hard to break.

Caution is in order at this time. The "Good Book" advises that "the tree is known by its fruit." In many ways the fruit is still only a bud, despite Mr. Gorbachev's beguiling words.

Admiral Crowe, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, finds more continuities than changes in the essential elements of Soviet military power. Earlier this spring he said, "I cannot rationalize a real reduction in spending for defense based upon force draw-downs announced by the Soviet Union * * * or the prospect that an arms agreement is just around the corner." Mr. Speaker, I say until old habits give way to "new thinking," let us not rush to judgment.

VETERANS' MONEY BEING HELD HOSTAGE BY CHRISTMAS TREE BILL

(Mr. BILIRAKIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I am in the well today because I am deeply sorrowed by the lack of respect that I think the House of Representatives is giving to veterans throughout America regarding the supplemental appropriations bill. We are all aware of the dire emergency of supplementing the current veterans' affairs budget, and that that was the primary reason for this legislation.

However, I feel compelled to say that I believe that the veterans' money is being held hostage by this Christmas tree bill. I find that a paramount concern of most Americans is that we balance the budget, and yet that goal is being thwarted by bills like this where programs less needy are tied to ones in desperate need, done in this way strictly intending to force us to vote for it.

The national commanders of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Paralyzed Veterans of America all have written the leadership of the House asking that we pass a clean supplemental appropriations bill. Let us stop monkeying around with the money and services that are intended for those individuals who risked their lives for America.

They were brave enough to face enemy bullets and mortars. Are we brave enough to face tough budget questions? I certainly hope so.

ONE PENNY SEPARATES POOREST WORKING AMERICANS FROM A WAGE INCREASE

(Mr. HOYER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, the Senate joined the House yesterday in responding to the needs of working Americans by voting to raise the minimum wage to $4.55, its first raise since 1981, 8 years ago. The American people overwhelmingly support raising the minimum wage and for a very good reason.

The President, however, seems to be having a problem. There are the facts: While the minimum wage has remained frozen, average hourly wages have risen 35.9 percent, and the cost of living has increased 39.8 percent, but the minimum wage has been allowed to sink to its lowest level since 1955.

Mr. Speaker, I said on this floor a few days ago that it was but three thin dimes separating the Democratic Congress and the President of the United States. Today the chief of staff, Mr. Sununu, is quoted in the paper as saying that if it is $4.26 it will be vetoed today and tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow. It is one penny for the poorest Americans, one penny more than the President says he wants, that is separating the poorest working Americans from a fair wage increase.

VETERANS BEING TURNED AWAY BECAUSE OF THE SUPPLEMENTAL BILL

(Mr. McEWEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McEWEN. Mr. Speaker, today thousands of veterans will be turned away from our veterans' hospitals. An estimated 25,000 over the past 3 days have been rejected from outpatient clinics. There is a drastic shortage in the Veterans' Administration.

Many of us believe we need between $500 million and $600 million this fiscal year just to allow it to function as it has in the past. The President, in an effort to save money, requested only $340 million some 6 weeks ago and asked the Congress to act upon it.

Mr. Speaker, the debate today, and the reason we are not acting at this moment, is because of the question as to whether or not we want to throw another $400 million, $500 million, $600 million, $700 million, $800 million at the drug problem.

While veterans are being denied access to veterans' hospitals, we want to spend two, three, four times that to put in the basket for drugs when over 90 percent of the money there presently has yet to be applied for by the States. They have more money than they can spend presently, and yet we are unwilling to spend what is necessary for the Veterans' Administration to serve our veterans.

Mr. Speaker, something is drastically, drastically wrong.

VIETNAM VETERANS WANT DECENT WAGES, TOO

(Mr. APPELGATE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. APPELGATE. Mr. Speaker, Republican after Republican rose on this floor of the House of Representatives to condemn those who would hold back veterans' medical appropriations in the supplemental, and yet Republican after Republican rose on the floor of this House to condemn raising a minimum wage to a still less-than-respectable living wage. Tens of thousands of veterans work in those very low wage areas, or they do not work at all.

Where is the compassion for those veterans, most of whom are Vietnam veterans? They, too, want decent and respectable wages with which to raise their families.

Let us be consistent. I am afraid your compassion is leaking.

THE COOPERATIVE HOUSING OPPORTUNITY ACT

(Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation to provide Federal encouragement to cooperative housing projects for low- to moderate-income families. Many families today earn too much to qualify for current housing programs like section 8, but far too little to be able to save for their own home. In regions where housing costs have increased faster than wages, these families have very limited choices in housing.

My bill, the Cooperative Housing Opportunity Act, would give them such a choice by building a new partnership between public and private resources to make cooperative housing more widely available. Cooperative housing projects renovated with the help of the families themselves are already easing this problem in many communities. My bill pursues all the best goals of an effective housing program by providing a partnership between Federal and State resources, local control, and incentives for non-profit and private sector involvement in housing solutions. Most of all, it would empower families, giving them affordable housing with a limited amount of equity in return for working to renovate and manage the cooperative.

Mr. Speaker, limited equity cooperative housing works and it should be a part of any new comprehensive Federal housing policy.

WE NEED TO PASS LEGISLATION FOR OUR VETERANS TODAY

(Mr. MONTGOMERY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Speaker, since I have been here 20-odd years, legislation has been a compromise, and certainly we need a compromise today to work out something to where at least the veterans funding can come up on this House floor. If we even have to separate it from the dire supplemental legislation, we should bring it up so that we can at least get this veterans funding moving ahead.

I am told by the Secretary of Veterans' Affairs that week after next, and I want my colleagues to listen to this date, week after next the Veterans' Administration in the medical care system will have to start laying off 800 professional employees in medical care each week until this dire emergency funding is passed. So it will not happen next week, but week after next 800 professional people will have to be laid off.

What happens when we do that? We turn away veterans and we do not have enough employees to take care of them, and the quality of the medical care goes down.

So Mr. Speaker, I hope we can get something done on this veterans emergency situation and done today.

LEGISLATION TO END THE SLAUGHTER OF ELEPHANTS

(Mr. CONTE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, 28 years ago I went to Africa for the first time to meet the leaders of several African nations. Seeing the herds of elephants and giraffes firsthand will live on in my memory as one of the most beautiful moments I have ever experienced.

Last week, I opened up an issue of National Geographic to an article describing the activities of poachers in Africa who, right now, are gunning down 200 to 300 elephants per day with submachine guns, and removing their tusks with chain saws.

I felt sick to my stomach.

Yesterday, I introduced legislation to end this slaughter. My bill places an immediate ban on the importation of all elephant products. It also expresses our desire to see elephants reclassified under the international CITES (Sight-ees) agreement, to ban trade of elephant products among the 101 CITES members.

I strongly urge my colleagues to co-sponsor this bill to help stop the chainsaws, and ensure that there will never be a day when the people of Africa must visit a zoo to see a live elephant.

WE NEED ALL OF THE DIRE EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS

(Mr. VOLKMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Speaker, as Members of the House, I too along with 99⁹/₁₀ of the Members of this House would like to see that urgent supplemental up today to take care not only of the veterans matters but also other matters that are necessary, especially for drug enforcement. We need additional funding for the remainder of this year to adequately fight our war on drugs.

We just heard the President earlier this week on what we need to do, and we need to address that today as well as the veterans funding. We need to provide those additional funds for the fight on the war on drugs. That is just as important in my mind as making sure that our veterans receive the care necessary in our veterans hospitals.

So let us get on with it. Let the appropriations chairman bring up what he proposed to do yesterday and take up the bill, pass it, and send it on to the Senate today.

OAS KEEPS HEAT ON NORIEGA

(Mr. BROOMFIELD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROOMFIELD. Mr. Speaker, over the years, many in Washington have voiced a low opinion of the work done by the Organization of American States. But last night's OAS resolution on General Noriega demonstrates that the organization can play an important role in achieving democratic reform throughout the Americas.

The resolution has put the OAS clearly on the side of the democratic forces in Panama. The verdict of Panama's voters and the graphic television pictures of Noriega thugs beating the democratic opposition candidates created a movement in this hemisphere for the ouster of General Noriega. Last night's OAS vote helps sustain the momentum.

Momentum in these matters is everything. The failure of yesterday's general strike shows that Noriega still has the power to intimidate the Panamanian people. But it is clear that criminals like Noriega are most successful when operating under cover of darkness. The OAS delegation will keep the international spotlight on Noriega and his thugs. Forcing Noriega to carry on his criminal activity in the light of international publicity may be just what is needed to convince him to step aside.

MINIMUM WAGE

(Mr. HAYES of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYES of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, from all indications and from what I read and what I have heard, President Bush intends to veto the minimum wage bill as proposed and approved by both Houses. I would like to request the President to think before acting, think of those people who are now living below the poverty line. Even $4.45 cents an hour certainly is not a lot of money and it does not take effect until some 3 years hence.

A person with a family having to live on $9,000 a year certainly does not have a lot of money, and to use the argument that it is going to cause jobs to disappear is one I have heard for years, even when I made 40 cents an hour as a result of the first increase under the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Mr. President, I request as one citizen, as one Member of the House of Representatives who represents people in great numbers who live below the poverty line, let them make some kind of wage that might lift them out of that level and help those kids get a decent living and stay away from crime.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES FLEXIBLE WORK ARRANGEMENT ACT OF 1989

(Mr. WOLF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.)

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce legislation that would allow Federal employees the same work scheduling opportunities that are being provided by leading private sector employers. This legislation, the Federal Employees Flexible Work Arrangement Act of 1989, would allow the Federal work force to keep pace with changes in technology and changes in the demographics of the working population, so that qualified and experienced individuals will continue to enter public service.

Private sector employers have recognized the needs of the workers of today by offering flexible schedule arrangements so that workers can spend more time with their families. These arrangements are responsive to the needs of today's work force, which is comprised of an increasing number of two-income families with young children, and an increasing number of employees with dependent elderly family members. The minor costs of allowing flexibility in work scheduling have been regained by private sector employers through more productive employees, and employees with greater job satisfaction. Flexible work scheduling has also allowed employers to retain valuable employees and to attract others who desire this flexibility.

The legislation I introduce today will allow the Federal Government, this country's largest employer, to respond to the realities of the work force by expanding job-sharing work arrangements and by exploring the feasibility of flexiplace work.

Job sharing occurs when two individuals who are similarly situated and skilled share one job. Job sharing has been successfully utilized in the private sector to allow men and women who wish to scale back their working hours to part-time status to do so. There are several reasons why an individual would want to share a job—a new mother might want to reenter the work force but still spend time at home, an individual with an ailing parent might want to spend more time attending to that parent. Job sharing allows these workers to structure their lives to maximize time at home, while still maintaining a presence in the office. Thus, job sharers can maintain responsibility for important aspects of their jobs, can keep pace with changes that occur, and also spend needed time at home.

Job sharing requires skillful management to determine what jobs lend themselves to be broken down into two positions. It also requires the match of two individuals who can coordinate their skills and their schedules to fill one job. Job sharing is already authorized in the Federal work force under chapter 34 of title 5. Unfortunately, the actual utilization of this authority is low because these job-sharing arrangements currently arise only on an ad hoc basis. Two Federal workers discover that they would like to share a job and go to their supervisor for approval. The problem is that workers are often unaware that this type of work scheduling arrangement is permitted. It is also rare that employees are able to find a suitable match for a job-sharing arrangement.

Title II of the Federal Employee Flexible Work Act of 1989 would facilitate these matches by providing that the Office of Personnel Management [OPM] establish a clearinghouse information program that would allow Federal workers to locate others in a commuting area who want to share a job, and what jobs in the area could be filled by job sharers.

A second work scheduling arrangement that has been successfully implemented in the private sector is flexiplace work. Generally, flexiplace work is work that would ordinarily be performed in the home office, but under the flexiplace arrangement is performed outside of the office, either in the employee's home or in another setting remote from the home office. Currently, there are over 200 private sector firms that utilize flexiplace work. Some of the most successful of these include American Express, Best Western, Control Data, and New York Life Insurance. The public sector has also recently been investigating the feasibility of flexiplace work, with California and Washington State as leading examples.

The success of a flexiplace work program depends upon the type of job selected and the understanding by both employees and managers of their rights and responsibilities. Title I of this legislation would provide that agencies determine what, if any, positions within the agency could be filled in a flexiplace arrangement. Agencies would then set up a training program for employees and managers, and would determine which employees are eligible for participation. These programs would be subject to approval by the Office of Personnel Management, which would, 21 months after the beginning of the program review all of the participating agencies' experience with flexiplace work. OPM would then make recommendations to Congress regarding flexiplace in the Federal work force, analyzing the costs or savings of the program, and its effect on employee productivity, job satisfaction, and morale.

Flexiplace work has several hidden benefits—it decreases traffic congestion, it reduces commuting costs for participating employees, and it reduces pollution associated with automobile use. The primary motivation for exploring this work arrangement in the Federal work force, however, is that it provides flexibility for those employees with family or personal needs.

As the labor market makes it more difficult for all employers to fill positions with qualified and experienced workers, it is important that the Federal Government keeps pace with the private sector. This legislation does that by expanding job sharing and flexiplace work opportunities in the Federal work force.

H.R. 2435

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Federal Employees Flexible Work Arrangements Act of 1989".

TITLE I—DEMONSTRATION PROJECT

SEC. 101. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this title—

(1) the term "agency" has the meaning given it by section 4701(a)(1) of title 5, United States Code, except that such term also includes the United States Postal Service, the Postal Rate Commission, and a military department (as defined by section 102 of such title);

(2) the term "employee" has the meaning given it by section 2105 of title 5, United States Code;

(3) the term "Office" means the Office of Personnel Management; and

(4) the term "flexiplace work arrangement", as used with respect to an employee, means an arrangement under which the employee is allowed to perform the duties and responsibilities of such employee's position at home or another place apart from the employee's usual place of work.

SEC. 102. AUTHORITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Agencies may design and, upon approval by the Office, conduct experiments to test the feasibility and desirability of offering flexiplace work arrangements to their employees.

(b) PROCEDURES.—The Office shall by regulation establish procedures under which proposals for experiments under this title may be submitted. In addition to any requirements as to the required form or content of any agency proposal, the regulations shall indicate the deadline for submitting any such proposal. Regulations under this subsection shall be prescribed not later than October 1, 1989.

(c) GUIDELINES.—The Office shall prescribe guidelines with which all flexible work arrangements under this title must conform. The guidelines shall provide as follows:

(1) An agency conducting an experiment under this title shall be responsible for determining which positions or types of positions will be included. The procedures used in identifying the employees to be included in the experiment shall be consistent with—

(A) subsections (f) and (g) of section 4703 of title 5, United States Code; and

(B) the interest in having flexiplace work arrangements tested in a broad range of positions which vary on the basis of pay level, job functions, and other factors.

(2) Employees selected to test flexiplace work arrangements and the personnel who will be supervising them shall be given appropriate training, including training relating to any new or revised standards which will be used in performance evaluations.

(3) The agency may impose reasonable conditions to ensure the appropriate use and maintenance of any equipment or items provided for use at a participating employee's home or other place apart from the employee's usual place of work.

(4) The agency shall establish requirements relating to the frequency with which the employee must report to such employee's usual place of work each week or each month, as appropriate.

(5) Participation by an employee shall be voluntary. An employee may elect to cease participating in a flexiplace work arrangement at any time. The employing agency may terminate an employee's participation in such an arrangement if the employee's continued participation would not be in the best interests of the agency.

(6) Participation in the project will not adversely affect an employee's eligibility for advancement or any other rights or benefits.

(7) The limitations under section 1348 of title 31, United States Code (relating to telephone installation and charges) may be waived for participating employees in appropriate circumstances.

SEC. 103. TERMINATION DATE; REPORTING REQUIREMENT.

(a) TERMINATION DATE.—Experiments under this title shall terminate not later than September 30, 1991.

(b) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—The Office shall review all experiments undertaken under this title and, not later than June 30, 1991, submit a written report to the Congress containing its findings. The report shall include—

(1) the Office's findings with respect to any additional costs or savings associated with flexible working arrangements, as well as their effect on productivity, job satisfaction, and morale; and

(2) recommendations for any legislation or administrative action which the Office considers appropriate.

TITLE II—JOB-SHARING PROGRAM

SEC. 201. JOB-SHARING PROGRAM.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—Section 3402 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(c)(1) The Office of Personnel Management shall establish and operate a program designed to facilitate the use of job-sharing arrangements in agencies.

"(2) Under the program, the Office shall serve as a clearinghouse for information pertaining to individuals seeking employment under job-sharing arrangements, and any positions which may or must be filled under such an arrangement.

"(3) Any individual wishing to be included in listings furnished under the program may be required to indicate the positions or types of positions sought, personal qualifications, days or hours of availability for work, and any other information which the Office may by regulation require.

"(4) An agency having positions appropriate for listing under the program shall inform the Office as to the availability of those positions. Agencies shall provide such information as the Office may by regulation require, including information relating to how the duties and responsibilities of each position would be apportioned under a job-sharing arrangement.

"(5) Information pertaining to any particular individual shall be kept available until the earlier of—

"(A) a written request by such individual to be excluded from the program; or

"(B) such individual's being placed in a position on a job-sharing basis.

An individual may not be included in listings under the program for more than 1 year, except upon the written request of such individual for an extension. An individual may receive more than 1 extension under the program, but each such extension shall be for not to exceed 1 year."

(b) NOTICE.—The Office of Personnel Management shall take measures reasonably designed to provide continuing notice to Government employees and applicants for Government employment relating to the availability of the program established pursuant to the amendment made by subsection (a).

DIRE EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL

(Mr. KOLBE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, I have heard from scores of veterans wondering about the status of the dire emergency supplemental appropriations package and the only answer I have for them is to wait and see. Well, frankly, veterans can not afford to wait and see any longer.

Some $340 million are desperately needed to continue vital veterans' health activities. We are not talking about nice-to-have new construction projects. We are talking about basic clinical services, prosthetic limbs, and equipment. One constituent told me that the medical personnel at one clinic had to chip in just to buy bandages and tape. I ask you, where is the commitment to our veterans?

It is my subcommittee that is the source of much of the delay. My chairman is trying to ensure that we adequately fund the drug effort—and I commend him for this commitment. But if we appropriate all this money in fiscal year 1989, the result will be huge carryovers into 1990.

Stuffing hundreds of millions of dollars down the Justice Department's throat in fiscal year 1989 is ill-advised. We need to make the commitment to the war on drugs with fiscal year 1990 funds.

So, let us not hold up the funds that our veterans need this very moment when we have enough funds to support our current drug efforts during the balance of the fiscal year. I urge in the strongest terms possible for the passage of a clean supplemental to meet our obligations to our veterans.

FREE THE VETERANS' APPROPRIATION FROM OTHER FUNDING REQUESTS

(Mr. SCHIFF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, our veterans' centers, medical centers are in dire need of emergency funds right now. I have not heard any disagreement from either side of the aisle on that point. Yet we still have not passed an emergency funding appropriation for the veterans' medical centers.

The reason we have not done so is there is disagreement over other requests for emergency funding as to whether or not it qualifies under the criteria.

I respectfully suggest that the solution is to free the veterans' appropriation from being held hostage to other proposals and to have a clean vote up or down on funding the Veterans' Administration hospitals and to follow that with a vote, one by one, on other emergency proposals.

Some of them will pass, some of them will fail, but we will have the entire issue resolved in that way.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES' CONSIDERATION OF THE PANAMA ELECTION FRAUD

(Mr. BEREUTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, in the 10 days since Gen. Manuel Noriega subverted his country's election process, chaos has ruled the streets of Panama. The so-called dignity battalions of General Noriega attacked and brutally beat, Guillermo Ford, the man that legally selected by the people of Panama to be their new Vice President. It was only by the quick reaction of his bodyguards, one of whom died in the effort, that Vice President-elect Ford's life was saved. Clearly, Mr. Speaker, the present situation is intolerable.

The Organization of American States met last night and will apparently meet today to consider actions in responding to Manuel Noriega and his band of club wielding thugs. Commendably, this meeting was called at the request of several Latin American nations, for they recognize that Noriega's behavior threatens the stability of the entire region.

Early reports from its OAS meeting last night indicate that the OAS by a vote of 20 to 2, cited Manuel Antonio Noriega by name in its condemnation of the electoral crisis. Only Nicaragua—yes Nicaragua sided with Noriega and Panama. In addition, the OAS appears prepared to send its General Secretary to Panama in an effort to facilitate a transfer of power. As the OAS considers these important decisions, it is functioning precisely as it was intended to function—as a vehicle for united action in times of hemispheric crisis.

Mr. Speaker, the United States continues to be represented at today's OAS meeting by Secretary of State James Baker. President Bush is to be congratulated for encouraging the OAS to present a united front against last week's electoral fraud. This Member is certain that Secretary Baker will press the OAS for the strongest possible response to the Noriega Junta's outrageous behavior.

In addition, this Member would hope the OAS supports and applauds those Panamanians who bravely do take to the streets to protest this denial of their electoral rights by General Noriega and his doberman-like thugs.

Mr. Speaker, the Organization of American States is by charter and purpose ideally tailored to deal with the situation in Panama. It is the proper venue for the formation of a consensus response. Its 31 members are able to give the OAS a truly hemispheric voice. As the OAS acts on the theft of the election and postelection brutality in Panama, there will be no way for General Noriega to label it as American imperialism.

VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION MAKES HISTORIC DECISION ON AGENT ORANGE

(Mr. BONIOR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, last week the Department of Veterans' Affairs made an historic decision.

Secretary Edward Derwinski announced 1 week ago today that the VA will reconsider thousands of agent orange disability claims that previously had been denied.

This action marks an important turning point. The Federal Government now finally recognizes what the American people have known for years. Mr. Speaker, agent orange has caused serious illness in thousands of Vietnam veterans and our Government owes these veterans compensation for their pain and suffering.

I want to praise the leadership of Secretary Derwinski on this issue. It is my hope that soon Congress will begin working hand in hand with the VA to set up new and fair criteria for agent orange compensation.

CHEMICAL AND BIOLOGICAL WEAPONS NONPROLIFERATION ACT OF 1989

(Mr. PORTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, the proliferation of chemical and biological weapons has reached tragic proportions.

Iran, Iraq, Libya, Ethiopia, Syria, and North Korea, along with 15 other countries, already have chemical weapons. Most of these countries developed toxic weapons with western technology.

CIA Director William Webster and chief U.S. export official Paul Freedberg have said publicly that our own export controls in this area are weak.

Today, along with 80 original cosponsors, I am introducing the Chemical and Biological Weapons Non-Proliferation Act of 1989. This bill requires the Commerce Department to issue new export controls designed to stop the export of chemicals and technology easily used for chemical weapons production. I urge all members to cosponsor this needed legislation.

These new controls alone, obviously will not stop CBW proliferation. They will allow the United States to lead by example. We cannot rightly criticize West Germany and Japan for providing chemical weapons technology to Libya, when our own export controls may not prevent a similar disaster.

We must shore up these controls to ensure that no U.S. companies are responsible for further proliferation.

DELAYED ACTION ON VETERANS HEALTH CARE FUNDS WILL FORCE CUTBACKS ON LEVEL OF MEDICAL CARE PROVIDED

(Mr. WALKER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, we have a crisis in veterans health care and we need to deal with it today. Now it is not me saying that, it is Secretary Derwinski who says that in a letter marked "Urgent," addressed to the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

The Secretary of Veterans' Affairs says it is important that the House act immediately. He also says that, "Delayed action will force us to take measures to cut back on the level of medical care provided."

Now that is already happening out there, that is not something that is going to happen a few days from now or a week or two from now; it is happening.

Already since July we have had 2,650 beds that have been closed, we have 133 facilities across the country who report a total shortfall of nearly $335 million for equipment, maintenance, and supplies; 50 percent of the facilities report elective-surgery delays and nearly all reported a delay or a reduction in pharmacy services; 113 facilities reported using funds allocated for contract nursing home care to offset budgetary shortfalls; 72 facilities reported delays in providing clinical appointments to all patients including service-connected veterans and 85 percent of the facilities indicated inpatient and outpatient reductions are imminent due to budgetary constraints.

That is terribly unjust. The veterans are suffering because we are unwilling to act. It is time that we act. The time is today. It has to be done before the end of legislative business today.

INABILITY TO DEAL WITH SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATION BILL IS ROTTEN NEWS

(Mr. UPTON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Speaker, today is the 18th of May. We are going to have a real problem when we adjourn here in this body to go home for Memorial Day recess.

Now why would you talk about the Memorial Day recess today? Because this week the Senate is going to be getting out of session and they are not going to come back until after Memorial Day.

Now what do most of us do? What do most of us public servants do over Memorial Day weekend? Well, we go to meet with our veterans groups, we talk at numerous cemeteries across our district, and we talk about the great love and freedom that so many men and women gave their lives to protect our country today.

Well, if we do not pass this veterans supplemental bill today, we might have a different tale to tell as we go to our cemeteries. We are going to have to tell our veterans, those who have survived, that the Veterans' Administration is turning away patients from hospitals, turning them away for low-priority care because we in this House since March 24 have not been able to deal with a supplemental appropriations bill.

Well, Mr. Speaker, I say that is rotten news. How can we go back and talk to our veterans about those who gave their lives and those who suffered injuries in those combat years that we are not able to deal with the business of this House? Some 2 months later we are not able to deal with the veterans supplemental.

Mr. Speaker, I say it is time to act today, this morning.

THOUGHTS ON LISTENING TO CROCODILE TEARS BEING SHED

(Mr. NAGLE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. NAGLE. Mr. Speaker, I have been sitting here listening to the crocodile tears being shed by my colleagues to my left, totally within their incapacity to recognize this crisis was created by a Republican administration previously under their control and that totally and utterly failed to adequately request or to seek funds or support needed funds for veterans hospitals.

It is great to cry about the crisis of the day, but Members need to ask the question how it came about. It came about in the last 8 years of the Reagan administration, more interested in sending money for freedom fighters in Nicaragua than taking care of the veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict.

It is great to sit here and cry because the money is desperately needed and the House will act, but do not lose sight of the problem historically created by their administration and their administration of the Veterans' Administration itself. It is great to say it is terrible we do not have the money, and trying to do it in a massive bill, doing it as quickly as Members can, but it is irresponsible to make the argument that somehow this is a Democratic problem when in fact the Veterans' Administration Hospitals have been under their administration for the last 8½ years.

MOVE FORWARD WITH THE SUPPLEMENTAL

(Mr. GINGRICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, I think that it should be very clear to everyone who heard the chairman of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs a few minutes ago, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. MONTGOMERY] who warned that within 2 weeks the Veterans' Administration will be laying off 800 medical personnel a week, every week. That the time has come to pass the dire supplemental.

Now the fact is that we do not just have to pass the supplemental in the House, we have to pass the supplemental in the House and get a supplemental through the other body, so it can go downtown to the President and be signed. The other body is going to leave at the end of the day and they will be gone until after Memorial Day, and I agree with my friend from Michigan who makes the point that there is something a little wrong about a Memorial Day weekend where we can find the time to go home for Memorial Day but we have not found the time to take care of veterans. I think that every Member of this House in a bipartisan basis should listen carefully to what the chairman on Veterans' Affairs said about the fact that within a very few days we are going to start laying off 800 medical personnel a week in the Veterans' Administration Hospitals unless we pass the supplemental.

We have everyone here today. Today is the day to pass the supplemental. There is no excuse for going home without having passed the supplemental, and if we pass it today I think we can then put pressure on the other body, and we can get it passed in the other body today and get it signed. If we do not do our job today, we, the House, will guarantee that veterans will not, in fact, have any kind of help on this particular problem until after Memorial Day.

DIRE SUPPLEMENTAL STATUS

(Mr. SMITH of Iowa asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I hear all this talk about the supplemental. Let me make clear what happened yesterday and where we are.

The chairman of the Committee on Appropriations offered to yield to every single thing the administration wanted and the House Republicans wanted, except we would have a chance to vote on drugs. Reluctantly, everything would come out that they objected to except money for the war on drugs. But, any member could have a separate vote on that. Any Member can move to strike. The ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations offered to do so, to move to strike that money so we could have the vote. But they do not want to vote on it. So there was an objection on that side.

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, the fact is, and I believe that the gentleman would agree, that we have already agreed in principle to bring in a clean bill to the floor and allowing the Members to have an amendment to add the money, and we are very prepared to vote on their adding the money now.

We will do it today. We have agreed in principle to their leader. We are very prepared right now, if the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN] will bring a clean bill in to have an amendment. We agreed to have an amendment for Mr. MILLER.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Why do Members want to take the Drug money out and then require the Members to fight to get it back in? Why wouldn't we leave it in and anyone who objects could have a motion to strike?

Mr. GINGRICH. The President offered a clean bill, asked for a clean bill. I think, frankly, virtually all Members on the other side of the aisle agreed that it is fair, have a clean bill. But the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH] and the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] will be allowed to have an amendment. We are willing. I am willing to help vote for a rule that gives a chance to amend, gives the gentleman a chance to amend. It has no Republican amendments.

We are willing to do it today. We are not afraid to vote.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Does the gentleman deny the veterans the money they need because Members want to take the money out and have Members later put it back in instead of moving to strike the money?

STATUS OF THE SUPPLEMENTAL

(Mr. GUNDERSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. GINGRICH].

Mr. GINGRICH. I think it is an important argument. We can argue about whether it is important to have a position where some Members are trying to take the money out of the bill or try to put the money in the bill, but on the specific question, are we prepared on the Republican side to vote on the issue of $821 million in additional spending on drugs that is not offset, we are very prepared to make the budget fight and to vote on your amendment. All we ask is that the gentleman's amendment be a free-standing amendment and that it is offered. We are prepared to have an hour debate on the amendment. We are prepared to have debate on the amendment of the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER], and prepared to go to the floor today. I think it is silly to argue over whether it is taken out or putting it in. We are prepared to vote up or down on the gentleman from Iowa, Mr. SMITH's amendment today.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GINGRICH. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I agree it is silly to argue over that. That is the reason it is not a fight about veterans at all. It is a fight about a silly thing about whether or not we take it out or put it in, and Members are holding up the veterans for that silly argument? I agree with the gentleman from Georgia on that.

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Speaker, if I have any time remaining, I want to emphasize that it is not a question of taking out or putting in. Why are we holding up the veterans? We have a piece of legislation in there right now which is a straight supplemental to solve the veterans' problems. We can take that up today or we can take the clean supplemental out of the committee today. The question is, are we going to fight about drug money for the next fiscal year which begins in October, or are we going to deal with veterans which are losing 800 jobs a week starting now?

STATUS OF THE SUPPLEMENTAL

(Mr. SMITH of Mississippi asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I represent two VA hospitals, in Biloxi and Gulfport, MS, with outpatient facilities in Pensacola, FL, and Mobile, AL.

An additional $300 million is urgently needed to provide the new medical equipment and better treatment of veterans and hospitals' outpatient clinics and community nursing homes and more medical supplies and prosthetic devices to our veterans. These additional sums are especially needed to improve the quality of medical care to low-income veterans and for others for whom the VA has a statutory obligation to provide that care. Without the supplemental funding today by the House, the Department of Veterans' Affairs medical program will not provide for over 930,000 visits by veterans to VA outpatient clinics, will not provide nursing care homes to an additional 300,000 veterans. Will not purchase equipment for new facilities, therefore delaying the opening of those new facilities. Will not provide adequate levels of prosthetic services to those veterans. We will not purchase materials for those required to protect our VA employees and patients, from contracting AIDS.

Mr. Speaker, without the additional funding today, certain VA medical centers will not be able to meet their staffing needs by contracting for nursing and other health care professionals. Since they are unable to hire sufficient numbers of Federal workers with the necessary skills, lack of funds for additional employees will deny veterans the medical care that they need and deserve.

I call on the House today to pass this dire supplemental veterans' appropriations bill.

FSX: A BAD DEAL

(Mr. HOLLOWAY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOLLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong opposition to the agreement with the Government of Japan on the development of a new fighter plane, the FSX.

I strongly disagree with the notion that we should transmit any of our valuable aerospace information to the Japanese.

America is the leader of the world when it comes to fighter aircraft construction and development. Why in the world should we give Japan an opportunity to assume a leadership role themselves by utilizing our aircraft technology?

As you know, the Senate approved the FSX agreement Tuesday—after adding the Byrd amendment. Despite approval of the Byrd amendment, I stand here today to say clearly: The FSX deal remains a bad idea which is against America's best interest now. It will be against our interests tomorrow and for the foreseeable future.

I agree with the observation made during debate in the other body: Instead of negotiating a senseless agreement with a competitor who enjoys a huge trade surplus and has repeatedly engaged in unfair tariff practices, we should stand up and demand that the Japanese buy American F-16's off the assembly line. If they are unwilling to do this, let them attempt to build their own fighter plane without our highly advanced technical help!

As you know, I am a "Buy America" man. The past two decades of migration of technology and skills overseas has caused fierce competition for American firms in areas where they were previously dominant. We are dominant in aircraft construction. Let's stay that way.

International competition may be the blood of our free enterprise economy, but it may be the death of our national security. It makes absolutely no sense for the United States to save a potential competitor the billions of dollars necessary to conduct the research, development, testing and evaluation to get to the point of production.

Let's start thinking of ourselves first—and let's not give a handout to our competitors. Let us demand a level playing field. Let us act in a manner consistent with that of the leading nation in the world. That means we must not now or ever again permit ourselves to be mugged at the negotiating table.

Mr. Speaker, I must concur with my colleague, Congressman DORNAN—"sometimes no deal is better than any deal."

DEMOCRACY ON THE RISE

(Mr. DREIER of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER of California. Mr. Speaker, as this week comes to an end and we are in the midst of debating the dire supplemental appropriations bill, I have to say that one message is very clear throughout the world, from Buenos Aires to Panama City to Tiananmen Square in Beijing: Oppressed people want the opportunity to engage in the same kind of debate in which we are engaging here today.

Earlier this week in Argentina, the election of Carlos Menem saw for the first time in 61 years the election and transition from one civilian government to another in that country.

I would also like to praise the Organization of American States, the body which condemned Anastasio Somoza 10 years ago. Yesterday, while not openly stating it, they made the decision to very clearly condemn the actions of the Narco military forces of Manuel Noriega.

Today, for the second day in a row in China, we see taking place the largest outpouring in the history of the world—over a million people—demonstrating in behalf of democracy, which we have as a model in this country. I think this message is very clear.

Mr. Speaker, this week we have witnessed these three examples of people throughout the world struggling for freedom. They want to have a chance to enter into the same kind of debate in which we are engaging here today.

VETERANS' BENEFITS STILL AWAITING ACTION ON DIRE EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL

(Mr. JAMES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, in my State of Florida there are nearly 1½ million veterans. There is no excuse for these benefits not to be voted today.

We all know the issue. Everyone in this Chamber, at least the vast majority, will vote for a supplemental on veterans' benefits, it is that simple. But the leadership has to get together and let us vote on it up and down.

Whatever we add to it, fine, but let us get it done before noon if we can so that the Senate can get to the issue.

I realize there is a problem because there are expenditures some Members want included for this year and last year, and we have the blackmail leverage, that is, for those who want to approach it that way. But the issue is, are we going to vote on it or not? The people will not forgive us if we do not; they will blame our leadership if we do not get it accomplished today.

Mr. Speaker, we are all responsible if we do not do what needs to be done.

FUNDS NEEDED IN THE SUPPLEMENTAL FOR BOTH VETERANS AND THE WAR AGAINST DRUGS

(Mr. AuCOIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the statement made by the last speaker. I am convinced that the majority of the Members of this Congress or this House want to vote today on veterans' benefits, and let no one be confused over that fact.

There are those of us on this side of the aisle and some, I hope, on the other side of the aisle who also feel the obligation to vote for something else that the American people are looking for us to vote for, and that is adequate funds to prosecute the drug wars in this country.

I just want to say to the Members and to my colleagues and to those who may be listening that the only dispute here is whether or not the House will have the chance today before we leave to vote on two critical things for the United States: Veterans' benefits for those veterans who need them and adequate funding to prosecute the war on drugs. We want to vote for both of those things. As of now we are being denied the chance to vote for both of those things.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. AuCOIN. I am not going to yield. I have only 1 minute to finish my statement.

I would just urge those who feel that veterans need these benefits, as I do, to permit a vote on those veterans' benefits and to permit a vote on funds for the drug wars.

Mr. SOLOMON. There is no dispute about that.

Mr. AuCOIN. There is no city in this country that is exempt from this fight. We want to make in order an amendment that allows these funds to go forward.

Mr. SOLOMON. Respectfully, will the gentleman yield now?

Mr. AuCOIN. Respectfully, I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SOLOMON. Respectfully, we want to do the same thing.

Mr. AuCOIN. Wonderful.

Mr. SOLOMON. We want to make those two amendments in order. There is no dispute about that.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, I just want to make the record very clear, that those of us who are in support of an amendment to fund the war against drugs are not doing a thing to deny veterans' benefits. We want both of those things to happen. We want those amendments on the floor, and we want to do it today.

CLARIFYING THE CONTENT OF A RULE FOR CONSIDERING DIRE EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS

(Mr. HANCOCK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HANCOCK. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER].

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to make clear what the gentleman from New York was pointing out to the gentleman from Oregon a moment ago. There is no dispute about voting on the so-called drug amendments. The question is whether or not we can bring a rule to the floor that allows precisely those kinds of votes.

Our leadership on this side of the aisle has agreed to that. As I understand it, most of the leadership on the other side of the aisle, I would say to the gentleman from Oregon, has also agreed to a package that would bring to the floor a rule that would make in order consideration of a bill that would allow three amendments: One by the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, one by the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER], and one by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH]. We are all agreed to that.

The problem is that there are Members on the gentleman's side that refuse to go along with that kind of a package. We cannot move on the bill until we get an agreement from the leadership of the Appropriations Committee to bring that package to the floor. What we are suggesting is that we bring that package to the floor, let us have the votes the gentleman from Oregon talked about, and let us pass a bill to fund the veterans.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman respectfully yield?

Mr. HANCOCK. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's yielding.

I appreciate what the gentleman has said. He has clarified the situation. I just walked on the floor, and the gentleman has clarified it for me. I would just make the statement that I do not think the Members on our side of the aisle resist making in order these amendments. There may be a few Members on this side who are in high places in that category, but I am in league for once with my friend, the gentleman from Pennsylvania. I think these amendments ought to be debated. I do not think the gentleman is afraid of a vote on a transfer from Star Wars to drug wars. We want to give the gentleman that opportunity.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, let me say to the gentleman that the situation is that we have to take the matter before the Rules Committee in order to do it, and the gentleman's side of the aisle is going to have to agree to it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. GORDON). The time of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HANCOCK] has expired.

EARNED INCOME TAX CREDIT SEEN AS A BETTER WAY TO ASSIST THE WORKING POOR

(Mr. PENNY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENNY. Mr. Speaker, neither the Labor-backed 60-day training period for first-time job seekers nor the Bush administration's plan for a 180-day training wage for all new job seekers holds out any promise that training will actually take place. These proposals smack of good politics rather than good policymaking for the work force.

Furthermore, a subminimum wage will likely result in a paperwork burden that will outstrip its usefulness to employers. There is some evidence that the existing subminimum laws go unused by employers because of the reporting requirements. It is unfortunate that the debate over an increase in the minimum wage has evolved into an argument over the relative merits of $4.25 versus $4.55 or whether a 60-day training period is preferable to 180 days.

There is an obvious compromise, given the administration's concern over a higher wage rate and Labor's concern with the subminimum wage. The subminimum or training wage should be dropped and a final wage rate of $4.25 over 3 years should be accepted. Once that is done, we should stop pretending that the minimum wage solves the problem of the working poor. Less than 20 percent of minimum wage earners are supporting a family, and neither $4.25 nor $4.55 will pull them out of poverty. Expanding the earned income tax credit and adjusting it by family size is an equitable way to assist wage earners in coping with the expenses that result from raising a family, and because the EITC is targeted to those most in need of a wage supplement, it is preferable to a large increase in the minimum wage.

Mr. Speaker, it would be tragic if in the final analysis no compromise was reached on the minimum wage issue, but it would be a greater tragedy if serious consideration is not soon given to the EITC as a better vehicle to improve family incomes for America's working poor.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GORDON). The chair will begin to recognize Members for special orders without prejudice to the resumption of legislative business. The Chair would advise Members to anticipate recorded votes.

CONGRESS DOES NOT HAVE THE COURAGE OF ITS CONVIC- TIONS IN THE WAR ON DRUGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NEAL of North Carolina). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, hopefully in a short time we will be able to resolve the issue surrounding the emergency supplemental appropriations bill for 1989 expenditures for the remainder of this year. On that legislation we hope to be able to offer an amendment that will allow us to transfer for the next fiscal year enough money from the Star Wars program to fully fund the Drug Wars Program in this country, a program that we, as Members of the Congress, committed ourselves to prior to the last election when many Members of the Congress took this well to explain to their constituents and to the Nation their deep concern for the drug epidemic that was plaguing our cities, our children, our adults, our work places, almost every facet of American life. We have now come to the sad situation, and maybe to the crucial hour, when this Congress will have to make up its mind whether those speeches were just so campaign rhetoric or whether or not we are going to truly commit the resources and the forces of this Nation to law enforcement, to drug rehabilitation, to education in order to rid this country of the scourge of drugs, and to rid our work places, and to give back to our children their childhood.

Mr. Speaker, that is the issue that is going to be drawn. That is the issue that we must confront.

As chairman of the Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families, I have spent a considerable part of the last 6 years talking with young people, with police chiefs, with school counselors and principals, with gang members, about this war on drugs, and I think maybe the most salient piece of evidence comes from some young gang members that testified in our committee when, in the presence of police chiefs and law enforcement representatives from major cities, they told us how the people that were controlling the drug trade in their neighborhoods and in their cities, people for whom they worked in the distribution of drugs; they told us how these people were fully prepared to do anything that was necessary to carry on their right to sell drugs in this country. They told us that the people that were making a profit off of the drug wars were fully prepared to arm the young people, that they were fully prepared to spend whatever money it took to maintain their market shares in the American drug market.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, they told us that they knew that they would win the drug war because the government would run out of patience, that the politicians would just give their speeches, that the various chiefs of police would sweep the streets on one Saturday night, but not on the other Saturday night, that all of the mayors in this Nation had serious deficit problems, and, as a result of that, they were fully committed to the notion that they were going to win the drug war because they knew that this history would repeat itself: that every October before election this country would become deeply concerned about drugs, but every January we would cut the budget, that every Presidential candidate would say it was important and then request less money after they were elected.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, they viewed this system with such cynical, cynical notions that they believed, in fact, that they were at no risk of being arrested; they were in fact at no risk of going to jail because the money would not be authorized for jails. The money would not be authorized for arrests. The money would not be authorized for prisons. They are even aware that earlier this week the President asked for $1.2 billion for a war on crime, but he provided no way to spend that money, no way to pay for that program, and they are aware that most of that money will never get enacted.

So, Mr. Speaker, they will continue to plague our neighborhoods, to plague our children, to plague our work places because they are on the winning side on the war on drugs because this Congress does not have the courage of its convictions to appropriate the money necessary to prosecute the war on crime and to prosecute the war on drugs.

Now what does that mean? It does not mean an awful lot to the Members in this Chamber because most of us live in neighborhoods where people do not sell drugs. Most of our children go to school where they are relatively safe. Most of our children do not walk through neighborhood streets or pass neighborhood corners where sometimes 40 or 50 drug dealers congregate. Most of our children can go out and play after school.

But what it does mean to a significant number of people trapped in neighborhoods infested by drugs is that they are losing their liberties. They are losing their rights. They are losing the right in this Nation to live a peaceful and decent life because their children come home, and they are told they cannot go out and play because of drugs. The children at night are told not to sleep in their beds, but to sleep on the floor so they do not get shot by stray bullets. People who are trying to move their families into housing cannot because the drug lords have taken over the housing. Kids that want to play basketball cannot because there are no hoops. There is no grass on the fields.

Mr. Speaker, there are no alternatives, and we have got to understand what this means to this country. This means the erosion of basic liberties for people, and, if we believe that this can be contained to the housing projects of Chicago, if we believe that this can be contained to the housing projects just a few blocks from this Capitol in any direction, we are terribly wrong. We are terribly wrong because it will not be contained. It is going to spill over on every institution that we use.

I will remind my colleagues that every institution that has confronted drugs has lost the war. Our hospitals are losing the war to crack babies. Our nutrition programs are losing the war to crack babies. Our foster care system is losing the war to drug-addicted babies. Our educational system is losing the war to drug-addicted children, and, continuing up the ladder, we will continue to see every social institution in this country swamped as a result of drugs.

The question for this institution, Mr. Speaker, in the next few hours is whether or not we are going to say finally to the American people that we have the courage of our convictions to fully fund the drug program that we promised them, that we told them would be on the streets. I am terribly afraid that perhaps the answer is that we will not do that, but it is our goal to give this Congress an opportunity to give them a choice with the AuCoin amendment to take one-third of 1 percent of the defense budget of this country, and for that one-third of 1 percent of the defense budget we will be able to double, to double the Federal efforts on the war on drugs. I think that is a tradeoff that this Congress and this country needs to make.

THE INFORMATION POLICY ACT OF 1989

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. WISE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, earlier this week, I introduced H.R. 2381, the Information Policy Act of 1989. H.R. 2381 is a bill to reform the information dissemination policy functions of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and for other purposes. I have reserved this time in order to talk about some of the major information policy issues facing the Nation and to discuss what my legislation is intended to do.

The flow of information from the Federal Government to its citizens is essential to the successful functioning of the democratic process and to the proper operation of the economy. In fact, the Federal Government is the largest single producer, consumer, and disseminator of information in the United States.

There are many segments of American society that need government information in order to function. These include the Federal Government itself, every type of business and industry, libraries and schools, newspapers and television, State and local governments, and ordinary citizens.

Government data is used in many different ways. Voters may use almost any type of Federal information to help make political decisions. Federal, State and local agencies use Federal statistical and economic data to make management decisions. Corporations rely on census information to make strategic business decisions. People doing business with the Federal Government need information to know what products and services are being purchased. Everyone relies on information from the National Weather Service to know if it will rain tomorrow.

Federal information is also a valuable economic commodity. There is a large and growing private information industry that functions in part by taking public government data, adding value to it, and reselling it to others. There are thousands of information products and services that are based in whole or in part on government information.

Because government information is so important, the policies and practices that regulate the dissemination of government information are also important. Over the last few years, the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs at the Office of Management and Budget has become the central information policymaker for the Federal Government.

At the end of 1985, OMB issued Circular A-130 on the management of Federal information resources. The most important part of the circular sets out policies that apply to the collection and dissemination of Federal agency information. A draft supplement to the circular was published for comment earlier this year.

Existing and proposed OMB information policies have been controversial. Some object that OMB takes an accountant's view of the value of Government information. They complain that OMB is too concerned about cost-effectiveness and cost recovery and that OMB has not put sufficient emphasis on meeting Government's general obligations to make information available to the public in a useful way.

Another complaint is that OMB policies are too heavily tilted toward the private sector. OMB wants to prevent agencies from offering an information product if the private sector might offer a similar product. Here too, the complaint is that OMB places too high a priority on the interests of the private information industry and too little weight on meeting the information needs of the public.

In January of this year, OMB proposed further policy guidance on information dissemination issues. This draft statement also became the center of controversy. Many people objected to the language that agencies should avoid disseminating any value-added electronic information products.

The draft OMB guidance included an example of the application of this principle using CD-ROM. CD-ROM stands for "compact disc—read only memory". This technology—which is very similar to the audio compact discs now used in place of phonograph records—has the ability to store and retrieve very large amounts of data on a small, inexpensive disc.

OMB suggested that agencies planning to release databases on CD-ROM's should not include on the discs the search and retrieval software necessary to access the database. According to OMB, this would be a prohibited value-added service.

CD-ROM may well be an excellent way of making information available in a useful electronic format. We may need to encourage wider use of CD-ROM by Federal agencies. But releasing massive amounts of data without adequate indexes and software tools that permit people to make effective use of the data is worthless. OMB's artificial restrictions on value-added services would mean that Government CD-ROM discs would have no value at all.

Whether or not you like the information policies that OMB has established, their importance is undeniable. OMB's policies have become the focus of debate on these issues. Ten years ago, the Freedom of Information Act was at the center of Federal dissemination policies. The FOIA still retains its importance today and will continue to be an essential tool in the future.

But the FOIA has been joined by other information distribution mechanisms. New technology is forcing us to reconsider how the Federal Government provides information to its citizens. The Federal Government needs to modernize our information policy laws.

OMB's policy guidance was issued under the authority of the Paperwork Reduction Act. But that act contains few specifics on dissemination issues. Congress has not provided any clear direction for OMB's policymaking efforts on information dissemination. That is the principal purpose of the bill that I have introduced.

The Information Policy Act of 1989 is intended to define and direct the information dissemination policy functions of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget. It is time for the Congress to take a more active role in shaping the policies that guide the availability of Government information.

The Information Policy Act is needed because changes in technology are making our information dissemination laws obsolete. Most of our statutes were written in an era when all information was on paper. Today, more information is kept in electronic formats, and this raises new problems that existing laws do not resolve.

I support the use of information technology to modernize the Government's information activities. But I want to be sure that the benefits of that technology will be fully shared with the public. I want to be sure that agencies will not use technology to exercise monopoly control over public information. I want to be sure that fees for electronic information will be reasonable. The Federal Government needs effective, efficient, and equitable information dissemination policies. That is the objective of my legislation. It will require OMB to recast and extend its information dissemination policy guidance.

Under H.R. 2381, OMB would be assigned specific information dissemination policy functions. Among other things, future OMB guidance would have to:

Recognize that the flow of information from the Federal Government to citizens is essential to the proper operation of the United States as a democratic society;

Require that electronic databases maintained by agencies be available to the public in useful electronic formats with adequate software, indexes and other tools;

Prohibit the maintenance of monopoly control over public information;

Supplement and not replace the information disclosure requirements of the Freedom of Information Act;

Require agencies to use marginal cost pricing and to provide for fee waivers for public interest disclosures; and Require agencies to make public information products, including products in electronic formats, available to depository libraries.

In addition, through my legislation, OMB will be required to develop oversight and enforcement procedures; provide for the development and maintenance of an index of public databases maintained by Federal agencies; and establish an advisory committee on information policy issues.

Another provision requires the preparation of uniform technical standards for Government produced CD-ROM discs. CD-ROM clearly has a lot of potential for making data widely available at low cost. We may need to encourage—but not direct—the use of CD-ROM by Federal agencies. If the Government can develop uniform procedures for indexing, data formatting, and search software, then Government CD-ROM discs will be easier for everyone to use. Standards for other electronic information technologies are also authorized by the bill.

Finally, the bill makes a number of miscellaneous changes to other records laws. Among other things, these changes would increase oversight of Privacy Act systems of records notices and give the Archivist of the United States authority to determine what constitutes records under the Federal Records Act.

The general idea behind the Information Policy Act is to establish basic principles in statute. Once we have accomplished this, I want to let OMB and the agencies apply these principles to make real decisions about existing and future information systems. I don't want the Congress to micromanage all of the Government's information activities, and I don't want OMB to control all of the information in Government. Nevertheless, every agency must operate under uniform and consistent rules and procedures.

Another pitfall that I hope to avoid is the prescription of any specific technology in statute. It is apparent that information policy is being driven today by technological developments. But in shaping new policies, we need technology-neutral principles that can be equally applied to floppy disks, magnetic tapes, CD-ROM, or whatever else the computer industry develops. I want to encourage the use of any information technology that will make Government data more valuable. At the same time, I don't want a statute directing the use of a specific technology.

Mr. Speaker, later this year, the Committee on Government Operations will consider legislation to reauthorize the Paperwork Reduction Act. That legislation will address many concerns about the role of the Office of Management and Budget in general and the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs in particular. I look forward to working together with Government Operations Committee Chairman JOHN CONYERS on the reauthorization legislation.

The Information Policy Act addresses only a fraction of the issues that will be raised during the reauthorization process. But the information policy problems that we face are complex and difficult, and it is not too early to begin thinking about them. I hope that my bill will provide a good starting point for the debate.

THE 41ST ANNIVERSARY OF THE STATE OF ISRAEL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANNUNZIO] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Speaker, I take great pleasure in saluting the people of the State of Israel on the occasion of the 41st anniversary of the founding of their nation. It was at midnight, May 14-15, 1948, the fifth and sixth days of Iyar 5708, under the Jewish calendar, that the British mandate of Palestine came to an end, and the State of Israel was created.

From the destruction of the Second Temple in 70 A.D. and their final heroic stand against the Romans at Massada in 73 A.D., until they declared their independence on May 14, 1948, the Jewish people were without a homeland, and in the Diaspora—dispersed throughout the world but without the loss of their identity.

The creation of the State of Israel was the culmination of centuries of struggle by the Jewish people to obtain political and religious freedom. Seen in its historic context, the establishment and growth of Israel is a momentous turning point in the 2,000-year-old quest by the Jewish people to achieve self-determination and religious freedom. The struggle has not been an easy one. Yet founded in difficult circumstances by a people who had suffered some of the most severe forms of persecution in the history of mankind, the Jewish people transformed the State of Israel into a modern agricultural and technological state.

Israel has always chosen a course of pursuing peace, even in the face of hostile neighbors who have been intent on destroying this tiny nation from the moment of its creation.

The fruit of Israel's persistence and determination to achieve this goal was the signing of the Camp David accords agreed to by Egypt and Israel. Today, Israel remains committed to seeking a lasting peace in a hostile environment dedicated to the destruction of this country.

Mr. Speaker, on the 41st anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel, I am glad to join with the citizens of the State of Israel, and their friends in the 11th Congressional District of Illinois which I am honored to represent, and throughout the world, who are celebrating this occasion. I also join them in their hopes and prayers that this year will bring us a step closer to the elusive peace which the State of Israel has always remained committed to achieve.

NATIONAL LAW ENFORCEMENT TRAINING WEEK

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. ASPIN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ASPIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce a joint resolution to designate January 7, 1990, through January 13, 1990, as "National Law Enforcement Training Week."

Law enforcement training, which serves as our law enforcement professionals' weapon against crime, is critical to the immediate and long-term safety and well-being of this Nation. As you know, law enforcement professionals provide service and protection to our Nation, so that our citizens may live free from fear. Each day, 500,000 law enforcement officers put their lives on the line as they go about their duties. Their jobs are dangerous ones. In the past 10 years, 1,525 police officers have been killed, 204,584 have been injured and 590,822 have been assaulted. In fact, every 57 hours, another American law enforcement officer is killed in the line of duty. Law enforcement training is the tool which enables these professionals to protect the Nation and themselves from harm.

With the crime and drug war raging, our law enforcement professionals need our support now more than ever. That is why I am sponsoring legislation to recognize the importance of law enforcement training. Law enforcement training is a critical element in keeping our law enforcement officers safe and effective. This legislation will not only honor current law enforcement training professionals, but it will also highlight the importance of this profession as a potential career path for the youth of our Nation. I hope you will join me in sponsoring this legislation.

H.J. RES. 273

Whereas law enforcement training and sciences related to law enforcement are critical to the immediate and long-term safety and well-being of this Nation because law enforcement professionals provide service and protection to citizens in all sectors of society;

Whereas law enforcement training is a critical component of national effort to protect the citizens of this Nation from violent crime, to combat the malignancy of illicit drugs, and to apprehend criminals who commit personal, property, and business crimes;

Whereas law enforcement training serves the hard working and law abiding citizens of this Nation;

Whereas it is essential that the citizens of this Nation be able to enjoy an inherent right of freedom from fear and learn of the significant contributions that law enforcement trainers have made to assure such right;

Whereas it is vital to build and maintain a highly trained and motivated law enforcement work force that is educated and trained in the skills of law enforcement and sciences related to law enforcement in order to take advantage of the opportunities that law enforcement provides;

Whereas it is in the national interest to stimulate and encourage the youth of this Nation to understand the significance of law enforcement training to the law enforcement profession and to the safety and security of all citizens;

Whereas it is in the national interest to encourage the youth of this Nation to appreciate the intellectual fascination of law enforcement training; and

Whereas it is in the national interest to make the youth of this Nation aware of career options available in law enforcement and disciplines related to law enforcement: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That January 7, 1990, through January 13, 1990, is designated as "National Law Enforcement Training Week", and the President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to observe such week with appropriate exhibits, ceremonies, and activities, including programs designed to heighten the awareness of all citizens, particularly the youth of this Nation, of the importance of law enforcement training and related disciplines.

DRUG-FREE WORKPLACE SHOULD APPLY TO CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NEAL of North Carolina). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, we have had quite a discussion on the floor today about the needs of our veterans and whether or not we ought to pass the supplemental appropriation, the dire emergency supplemental appropriation, to assure that veterans' care continues at high quality levels, and then a discussion primarily coming from the other side as to whether or not we ought to use that veterans bill as a vehicle to deal with the drug crisis in this country.

I have a little bit of familiarity with the whole drug issue. I have brought several amendments in the past to the floor, trying to get additional money for fighting drugs. In the last Congress, I came out here with a concept known as the drug-free workplace, which proved somewhat controversial on the floor, but ultimately was adopted by the Congress.

Now, the reason I find some of the discussion interesting, primarily coming from our colleagues on the Democratic side of the aisle today about the drug situation, relates to that drug-free workplace, because interestingly enough, in the course of our deliberations in the last Congress we passed a provision in an appropriations bill which covered Congress under the drug-free workplace. What we said was that Congress had to develop a policy for a drug-free workplace. In other words, under law, we are now obligated to do something about creating a drug-free workplace in the Congress.

Now, the rest of the country has also had to comply with that provision. Many companies across the country have had to put in place policies, they put in programs such as testing programs. They have done a lot of things over the last several months to bring themselves into compliance with the drug-free workplace provisions passed by this Congress just a year ago.

One institution in the country is noticeably lacking in its dedication to do something about the drug-free workplace. Guess which institution?

The U.S. House of Representatives has yet to obey the law. We have yet to put in place drug-free workplace provisions.

Now, I have to tell you from the minority side of the aisle, we do not have any power to do that. It is the majority side of the aisle that has to put in place these rules, these regulations, these standards out of the House Administration Committee. In other words, if there is really a willingness to fight drugs in this body, you would think that one of the first things we would do is obey the law ourselves; but the fact is that we have consciously at this point determined that we are not going to comply with the law. We are not going to go ahead and put in place the drug-free workplace regulations that we are required to do and which we require of all the country.

Now, many in the country might regard that as hypocrisy. "You force us to do it, but you won't do it yourself."

What we often say in those kinds of cases where we are unwilling to comply with the laws we pass for other people, "Well, there is no specific requirement for Congress to do it. We exempted Congress when we passed the law."

I have got to tell you, in this particular instance we did not exempt the Congress. Congress is specifically included under the general government provisions of the appropriation bill passed last year.

This House specifically voted, almost 2 to 1, to cover ourselves under the drug-free workplace amendments. We are not doing it. There is no action by the House Administration Committee thus far. There is no action by the Rules Committee. There is no action by anyone to cover this body under the drug-free workplace.

Now, to all my colleagues who have come to the floor and argued today that we have got to do something about fighting drugs, let me say to each of them, let us put our own House in order. I am prepared to live in this body with drug-free workplace amendments. I am ready to have regulations apply to all of us that help us get out from underneath the scourge of the drug culture.

What I hear from the other side of the aisle is they are willing to throw big dollars into programs where there is questionable need for the dollars at the present time, and at the same time are unwilling to have it apply to them in their own offices, apply to them in their own committees, apply to them in their own work on this Hill. I would suggest that the American people are going to look at that and really raise major questions.

That is the reason why some of us have to believe that what we are doing is playing politics with the veterans and playing politics with the drug issue in what has been happening out here over the last couple of days and particularly over the last couple of hours.

I want to make it very clear we are prepared on our side of the aisle to move a bill today that deals with the veterans' problem. We are prepared on our side of the aisle to allow the votes which are necessary, because people on the other side of the aisle want to vote on this issue, to give them the chance to vote on several drug amendments. We are prepared to do that. We would hope those amendments would fail, not because we are against fighting the war on drugs but because it just does not add up.

For example, the one place where the people on the other side want to put money in is into the Bureau of Prisons. Many of us think that we ought to put some money into the Bureau of Prisons, too, to lock up a bunch of drug dealers, the drug pushers and drug users across this country, but the fact is, though, that 92 percent of the funding for the Bureau of Prisons which is necessary for this kind of construction is already available in an unobligated balance. The money is not needed between now and October 1. We may need to upgrade those fundings next year, but it is not needed at this moment. Another place the drug amendments are going to put money in is into the State and local governments. The majority of the State grants that are already in place have not been obligated, and so the majority of the money is still available in that particular category.

We have to assume that what is happening here on the floor right now is playing politics with an issue that is a very serious concern to most of the American people, and I have to tell everyone that many of us are concerned about the idea that we have reduced the drug war to playing politics, particularly when we are unwilling in this body to fight the drug war ourselves by complying with the laws that apply to us on drugs.

Mr. Speaker, I would be far more willing to accept the arguments of my colleagues on the other side that they want to get serious about the drug war if we were complying with the law that covers us to get drugs out of the Congress, and I realize that we have had arguments in the past that suggest, "Well, we do not have a problem here," but we know that that is just not true. We know of people who have been arrested on Capitol Hill around our work sites, employees of the House who have been found using drugs within the last few months. We have a problem here. To suggest that there is no problem and that we do not have any obligation to obey the law is just wrong.

I would hope that within the next few hours, certainly within the next few days, that all of those who have come to the floor today suggesting that they are committed to doing something tough on drugs, committed to taking those actions which are necessary to fight the drug war, will also get in touch with the Committee on Rules and with the Committee on House Administration and a lot of other places and ask them to cover us, ask them to put the drug-free-workplace language into place which we are supposed to have based upon the law passed last year.

Let me turn, though, for a moment to the other side of the equation, the question of whether or not this dire supplemental for the veterans is really needed. Some have contended within the last couple of days in the House that the administration is just raising a phony issue, that we do not really need the money right now, that we can delay implementation of the money for a few days, that no one is getting hurt, that the Veterans' Administration is managing, that somehow the veterans are not suffering despite the present shortfall in funding. After hearing some of those statements made on this floor, some of us contacted the Secretary of Veterans' Affairs, Mr. Derwinski. Mr. Derwinski has quite a different story to tell. Mr. Derwinski said in a letter which was delivered to the Hill today that it is important that the House act on this immediately. He also said flatly that delayed action will force us to take measures to cut back on the level of medical care provided.

Mr. Speaker, that does not sound to me like someone who is suggesting that we have days, maybe even weeks, to wait. It sounds to me like a Secretary who feels strongly that he has to have the money now in order to move forward the programs that are vital to our veterans, and we know the situation that the Secretary finds himself in. We have documentation of the problem.

Most of my colleagues must not be aware that 2,632 beds have been closed since last July due to a lack of funds. That is 2,632 beds otherwise occupied by veterans in need of medical care that have been closed within the last year as a result of the lack of funds.

I heard somebody come out here a little bit ago and try to make this a partisan issue, that somehow the administration was at fault for that problem. The administration does not spend one dime that Congress does not appropriate. The appropriations levels that we came up with last year are the cause of this lack of funds. We have now come to the realization, both in the administration and hopefully here in the Congress, that there is a shortfall in those moneys, and so, therefore, something needs to be done.

When it comes to actually getting the action here, we get people who want to load up the bill with all kinds of porkbarrel items, not just on drugs, but there are all kinds of items in there. Japanese reparations is in the bill. We have all kinds of things down in there that we have decided to put in the bill and thereby delay the ability of the veterans to get the badly needed money to fund the hospitals that provide them with care.

It is not just that we have lost 2,632 beds; 133 facilities across this country have reported a shortfall of over $300 million in what they need for equipment, maintenance and supplies. In other words, we have 133 facilities across the country, veterans' facilities, who cannot keep the operation going. They have a shortfall in the very things that they need to keep the operation going. That is a real crisis. The Secretary of Veterans' Affairs understands that that is a real crisis, and he has requested us to do something.

Fifty percent of all of the facilities are reporting elective-surgery delays and virtually every one of them reported a reduction in pharmacy services. What does that mean? It means, for the veteran, that if he has to have elective surgery done, the chances are that the hospital that he goes to cannot provide that elective surgery for him at the present time. That is a terrible situation. Or if he has a pharmaceutical need, if he is taking a drug, even things like insulin, if he goes to the hospital, every one of the hospitals is more than likely right now to deny him the drugs that he needs. That is a totally unacceptable situation that we continue to exacerbate here by not passing the needed money.

One hundred thirteen facilities across the country have reported using funds allocated for contract nursing home care to offset budgetary shortfalls in other areas. What does that mean? It means that the veteran who needs to be put into a nursing home, that that money will not be available to allow him to go into that nursing home, because it is being put into other kinds of obligations that are of higher priority and higher emergency at the moment. Again, that is totally unacceptable to the families of those veterans who need to have the nursing home coverage and care available to them.

Seventy-two facilities across the country have reported delays in providing clinical appointments to all patients including service-connected veterans. We regularly in this body make it quite clear that regardless of what else we may do on veterans that we are always going to take care of those who have service-connected injuries. These are people who were specifically hurt in the performance of their duties while serving in the armed services, and that we were always going to make certain that they had the highest level of care available to them, and now, as a result of the inaction in this House, we now have them not receiving the clinical appointments that they need to deal with their service-connected injuries.

That is not the fault of someone downtown. That is not the fault of the hospital in the field. That is not the fault of the clinic. The fault rests right here in this House; it does not rest across the way in the Senate. It rests right here because all appropriation bills have to start here.

So for those Members who for some personal reason are holding up action on the veterans' appropriation, they are in fact causing service-connected veterans not to receive the appointments they need to deal with their clinical needs. That is wrong, and we have to do something to change the situation as of today. It cannot wait until next week, it cannot wait until after Memorial Day, it has to be done today.

This figure is a little shocking: 85 percent of all of the facilities across the country, veterans' facilities, indicated that inpatient and outpatient reductions are imminent due to the budget constraints. That is the reason why Secretary Derwinski is telling us we have to act today, because he understands that 85 percent of all his facilities are going to reduce inpatient and outpatient care almost immediately if we do not get the action taken today.

Those statistics alone should be enough to drive anyone who really does care about veterans toward doing something today. But to come out here and make political arguments that are designed to line up votes for the next campaign year at the expense of our veterans, I think, is very questionable. I think it is exactly the kind of action that the American people are finding more and more disturbing about the Congress, that the Congress has specific things to do, needs that have to be met, and yet we are seemingly incapable of doing those without loading up bills with pork barrel subjects without doing things, which the American public perceives as being absolutely wrong. It is exactly the situation we are in today.

We are in a situation where a few would place politics above policy. Some of us think that in this case the policy is very, very important. It is a policy of support for the veterans of this country that needs to move forward now, not later. It has to be done clean, not later. It has to be done clean, not dirty, and it is time to do it today.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WALKER. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I really appreciate the gentleman bringing this to the attention of this body because it is a question of politics today, and whether it is intentional or unintentional, it is seriously hurting the veterans' hospitals in this Nation today.

We just passed a budget on this floor yesterday for the coming year, 1990. In that coming year 1990 budget that we passed we picked up a shortfall of approximately $600 million that is existing in all of these veterans' hospitals out there today, 172 of them, plus 220 outpatient clinics. That means that throughout every single hospital in this country there is a shortfall of about $4 million per hospital.

I ask the gentleman to think of a hospital in his home district, whether it is Albany, NY, whether it is Pittsburgh, PA, or San Diego, CA.

Mr. WALKER. Lebanon, PA.

Mr. SOLOMON. Lebanon, PA. The sum of $4 million is a lot of money.

Let me tell my colleague what is happening today because of that shortfall. We picked up the difference in the 1990 budget coming, but here we are not even dealing with it for this present year.

I just got a call from someone up in Saratoga County in New York whose husband was turned away from a veterans' hospital because he could not get insulin. The gentleman from Pennsylvania mentioned that earlier in his statement.

I just got a call from a hospital director saying that they have lost doctors and nurses, and because of attrition and no money to pay them, they cannot replace them. Does my colleague know the difference between a nurse's salary for a veterans' hospital and that in the private sector? It is about $6,000. We have good, patriotic young men and women serving as nurses in our hospitals who are working for $5,000 and $6,000 less than they could make by going across the street and going to work for a private or even a public hospital.

When some of them do leave, there is no money to replace them. We have young nurses graduating from college today, from nursing schools who they would like to bring into the veterans' hospitals. They cannot hire them because there is no money there, because this Congress refuses to take action.

We have a $600 million shortfall. That means in Connecticut $600 million and all of those veterans' hospitals in Hartford, CT, are affected the same way. If we do not act today before the Senate walks out, which they are about to do, there will be no supplemental budget for at least 30 days.

In 30 days we are going to have veterans and their families hurt because of nonunderstanding by Congress here today.

I would just like to ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania what is his understanding of the holdup, what is it right now, today? As I understand it, there are 433 Members of Congress in this House in agreement with how we would operate, how we would bring that supplemental to the floor today, and there are two in disagreement. If that is the case, why can we not bring the supplemental onto the floor?

Mr. WALKER. I guess part of our problem is that the two who are in disagreement happen to be very powerful Members of this Congress, and they are Members who have to be forced to sign off on things, I guess, or have to be convinced to sign off on things before it happens. I personally think that is a shame.

I think the gentleman from New York is right, the vast majority of Members, and I do not know whether it is 433 or 400, but anyway the vast majority of Members are willing to have a scenario where we would get the votes that some on the other side of the aisle think they need, and where it may be a tough vote from some Members, but nevertheless they would cast the tough votes in order to get the veterans' thing done, and we are perfectly willing to go through that scenario. There are a handful of Members around here who are keeping us from doing that. That is the problem.

Mr. SOLOMON. If the gentleman from Pennsylvania will yield, I have a great deal of respect for those two Members of Congress on that side of the aisle. They both are outstanding Members. But there is something wrong, that somehow, someone just does not understand the gravity of this situation. It is a serious situation. It is a serious situation.

The Rules Committee could right now meet, and there is a quorum of all Rules Committee members, of which I am one, right now present in this Capitol. We could go upstairs to the Rules Committee, we could meet under the same agreement that all 433 Members have agreed to. That means we could report a clean supplemental with the dire needs that President Bush asked for. We would give the two Members on that side of the aisle their amendments that they want, and we would vote them up or down. They would get their day in court, and we could go home, and the veterans would be taken care of. But let us pass it.

Mr. WALKER. In fact, I am told that our side is willing to allow three amendments, to allow the chairman of the Appropriations Committee to have an amendment also. And even though my colleague from Pennsylvania [Mr. GEKAS], who has just joined us on the floor, has a very important amendment that he would like to have included in all of this that deals with section 89, all of us would like to vote on that issue too, but we are willing at this point in the spirit of compromise to say okay, give them their amendments, give them what they need, but let us get the bill out here, and let us act on behalf of the veterans, and we will try to come back to some of the things we regard as important another day. I wish we could get that kind of cooperation from a handful of Members on the other side, and that they would be willing to do it. Let me say I know of no one on our side of the aisle who is not willing to move ahead.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WALKER. I will yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GEKAS] in a moment, but first I yield to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. YOUNG], who has been here for some time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for yielding.

I would like to inform the gentleman and our colleagues that yesterday the Florida Members of Congress met with General Peck, who is the new Director of Veterans' Affairs for the State of Florida, and he discussed at length veterans' needs in Florida.

Having the privilege of representing the Eighth District of Florida, which is most of Pinellas County, we found we have more veterans' facilities in that congressional district than all of the other congressional districts. We also found that we have more veterans than most of the other congressional districts. Given the large number of veterans and veterans facilities in my district, I know first hand how very serious the current funding shortfall for veterans is.

I do not want to see any layoffs at the Bay Pines Hospital. I do not want to see medical care services reduced in any way at Bay Pines, which is in my district. I do not want to see any layoffs of the staff, and I do not want to see any of the veterans living in my district, or in Florida, or anywhere else in the United States denied medical care or benefits that they have had committed to them by this Congress year after year after year.

And frankly I join with the gentleman from Pennsylvania and our other colleagues in being considerably frustrated as to why we cannot get this supplemental appropriations bill on the floor today and get it passed while the Congress is in session to prevent layoffs at our veterans facilities and the denial of medical care or attention to veterans who need it badly.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his comments and would request that he respond to a question.

The distinguished gentleman from Florida serves on the Committee on Appropriations. Would it be his guess that most of the members of the Committee on Appropriations would join with him in that sentiment, that we are dealing with only a handful of people, not even a majority of the members of that committee?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I would say to the gentleman the vast majority, of the members on both sides of the Committee on Appropriations also would like to settle this matter in a timely fashion and that means today.

Mr. WALKER. I thank the gentleman very much and thank him for his statement. It is right on target.

I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GEKAS].

Mr. GEKAS. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I say to my fellow Pennsylvanian I would reiterate some of the comments made by the gentleman with regard to section 89.

I am willing to appear before the Committee on Rules—and I have some growing support on that—to try to include in this supplemental budget fiasco that we have now with a bit of sanity with respect to another part of the budget problem that we have, and that is section 89 and what it does across the board nationwide.

I have consulted with the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] who is on the Committee on Rules, and he is, too, willing to help me carry the water on this important issue.

We both believe—and I speak for the gentleman and of course he can speak for himself—that we believe that even if we adopt this in the Rules Committee, the long shot that it might be, it would do no violence to what we consider the clean bill that we are after in order to help the veterans. Why? Because the bill to eliminate section 89, to repeal section 89, has nothing to do with the fiscal realities of the supplemental budget. It does not add or detract one dollar from that piece of legislation.

When we talk about clean bill, and I would ask the gentleman to concur if he does, we are talking about a clean money bill having to do with the veterans and leaving all the other money considerations out of the bill that would not be agreed to by the administration.

Mr. WALKER. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SOLOMON. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Let me just say that if you were to appear before the Committee on Rules we are going to do everything we can to make that amendment in order. There is nothing I feel stronger about than the repeal of section 89 to help the small businesses across this country. Seventy-five percent of all the new jobs in America are created by small businesses and they need that repeal of section 89.

But let me say to the gentleman, as strong as I feel about that issue, I feel stronger at this time because of the dire need for the veterans of this Nation. And if it were a question of clouding that issue, then I am sure, and I am glad to hear the gentleman say that he would withhold and fight that in court at another time, in order to get this on the floor. I think that every Member of Congress should treat this as a real dire need for the veterans of this Nation.

I appreciate the attitude of the gentleman.

Mr. WALKER. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GEKAS. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Just to reinforce that point, I aim to strive mightily before the Committee on Rules, if that opportunity be given, to advance the repeal of section 89; there is no question about that.

However, and I know I am going to gain the support of my colleagues for determining that section 89's repeal has nothing to do with whether or not this bill is clean or not. I think that is an important point. I think it remains clean even if we add the repeal of section 89.

But as the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] says, I want the veterans considered as the primary target of our activity here, and failing that, or if we can add to it some consideration for the repeal of section 89,

I am willing to do it. But I will not insist on being heard on this issue—no, I will insist on being heard, but I will not carry it to its fullest conclusion if I feel that our veterans are going to be threatened by it.

Mr. WALKER. I wish we could get the number of our colleagues to be as rational in their approach to this issue as the gentleman from Pennsylvania is. I know that he feels strongly about section 89. I feel strongly about it. I would love to vote on the gentleman's amendment.

I think it is an entirely appropriate vote for the Congress to have. I think we have delayed having that vote for too long. This is certainly a time to do that. But I think the gentleman is in the spirit of what had to be done here.

There are high priorities of all kinds this Congress should be addressing. The highest priority at the moment is to move the money that is direly needed by our veterans then we will deal with some of the issues as they come up, and we will try to force a vote on some of these things.

You know, on these days when Congress goes home and does nothing we could be taking up section 89, for example. Our legislative schedule around here so far has certainly not been heavy lifting. We could certainly deal with some of these national priorities, including drugs. If we want to come up with additional money for drugs, I think a lot of us would be perfectly willing to talk about that as another issue here on the floor.

I think some of us would like, for instance, as part of another drug bill to look at some questions of whether or not we ought not to deal with the death penalty and a few things like that.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania was instrumental last year in getting an increase in the activities of using the death penalty against drug dealers and so on.

We might want to expand that authority some here on the House floor if we could get that kind of debate.

But the fact is nobody wants to debate these issues for real; they want to debate them in a way that it makes good politics and little else. I think that is terribly wrong when you are doing it on the back of the veterans.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. EMERSON. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I want to join in the statement that is being made by both the distinguished gentlemen from Pennsylvania and the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] in frankly exposing the parliamentary situation which exists here and which delineates the reasons for which these vital provisions for veterans are being held hostage. Heavy is going to be the responsibility of those who cut the veterans off at this very critical passage. The Senate—the other body, I should say, is not going to be in session next week. We may be talking about a 10-day to 2-week delay here if we do not act today.

There is going to be some explaining that needs to be done.

I have in my congressional district the General John J. Pershing Veterans Medical Facility. I represent a very, very far-flung rural district in southeast and south central Missouri. Veterans come from far and wide, particularly service-connected veterans, for assistance.

These veterans come for assistance often without appointments. They are going to be starting to be told that medicines and other services are not available to them, and that is going to be a real tragedy.

So I commend the gentleman for the service that he is rendering by laying this out.

As I indicated, some heavy explaining is going to have to be done, and I am glad that the record is being made here so that the veterans themselves will know where the responsibility lies for this interference with the services to which they are entitled and to which we as a Nation have every obligation to give them.

Mr. WALKER. I thank the gentleman. I think the gentleman would have joined me in being stunned to hear things like what the gentleman from New York was reporting to us, that there are veterans in his district who are not getting insulin.

I have a brother who is a diabetic. I understand that in a very personal sense if you cannot get your insulin, that is a personal emergency, that is a dire personal emergency.

Now what is happening across this country is that that is not just in the gentleman from New York's district, that is in other places across the country that there are some veterans being denied the drugs that they need, including things like insulin, because this Congress refuses to act.

You know, some may tell us that that is not a dire emergency.

I got to tell you for the veteran who is turned away for his insulin, that was a dire emergency; for the other veterans across the country who are being turned away, that is a dire emergency; for the veteran who cannot find the bed he needs when he has a medical emergency, that is a dire emergency.

You know, all of those things are happening out there as we stand here and talk, and yet we cannot seem to get a handful of people to give up their own personal agendas for the good of the country and for the good of the veterans of the country.

Again I say this is exactly the kind of performance that the American people are getting more and more turned off by when they look at the Congress. I mean I hear any number of our colleagues day after day say, "How come we don't get any respect? How come everybody is beating up on us? The news magazines, they beat up on us, the radio talk show hosts beat up on us, everybody beats up on Congress because we are doing our job."

Well, the fact is they are beating up on us because we are not doing our job. Our job today right here is to pass a supplemental appropriation that deals with the veterans emergency. Evidently, we are having trouble doing that. That earns us the contempt of many in the public who look at this operation and find it wanting.

I would suggest that if we are going to ever win respect from people, we have to clean up our own act. We have to make certain that when we are talking drugs we are willing to, like the kids say, walk like we talk; that it is not just something where we come and talk about a drug war and then do not walk it on the House floor by implementing drug-free work places for this body; that when we talk about doing the Nation's business that we really mean that, that when crises arise and so on we are capable of responding to the crises.

That is how you gain respect. You do not get much respect from people who see you failing to walk like you talk and failing to respond when crises arise.

That is precisely the position that this House is in today.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WALKER. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SOLOMON. Well, to our colleagues out there listening in their offices, I think the Members should think about this. The Office of Management and Budget, under all administrations, Democrat and Republican, are always hesitant to put money into a supplemental budget. In other words, they are stingy. They are tight with a buck. But this administration, this OMB has put their stamp of approval on this dire supplemental which is very, very large. One of the reasons they did that, thank goodness, is because this Congress had the infinite wisdom last year to create a Department of Veterans' Affairs and a Secretary of Veterans' Affairs who now has Cabinet status and now sits beside the President. That new Secretary of Veterans' Affairs, and Ed Derwinski, a former colleague of this House and a very able Member of this House, did get the President here to convince OMB and the rest of the administration that this is a dire need. That is why it is before us today.

I just cannot tell Members again, in other words, how important it is.

Every time employers have to lay off five nurses in a hospital, an entire ward is shut down. That means 50 beds go empty. That means 50 veterans are turned away. If there is a situation where people are sick, that is the reason we have the veterans' hospitals. If we did not need them, we should have shut them down.

The truth is, today, we depend on an all-voluntary army, all-voluntary military in this country. We do not have a draft, whether that is right or wrong, but one of the great reasons for people to enlist today is because of the veterans' benefits that they will be entitled to after giving 5 years of their life, after giving 10 years or 20 years of their life. It is an earned benefit.

Now to say that that veterans who may not carry the proper kind of health insurance he knows he is entitled to be taken care of for his medical needs in the veterans' hospitals, he does not have that care and now he is on Social Security, he is 68 years old, he served 5 years in the United States Army during the Second World War, he has no medical coverage whatsoever, and he is turned away and told to drive home 85 miles from that hospital. That is wrong, gentlemen, and I would tell those Members who are negotiating in that back room over there right now, come to an agreement, come out here on this floor and let Members act on the supplemental. Members need to do it for the people of this country.

Mr. WALKER. Let me say to the gentleman, there are a number of people in groups who absolutely agree with what the gentleman has said. For example, within the last day or two, the Veterans of Foreign Wars have come to this Congress saying, "We need to act immediately on this supplemental legislation as it applies to veterans."

The American Legion telegraphed, telegraphed the Congress and said, "You have got to act immediately." It says, "The American Legion strongly supports immediate action on a clean supplemental appropriations bill for fiscal 1989." The Paralyzed Veterans of American have made the same kind of request for this Congress. They want Members to act and they want Members to act now. They do not want this delayed by Congress playing politics.

There might be another subject to deal with, since it was dealt with emotionally by one of my colleagues a few minutes ago about whether or not in order to get the drug money into all of this that we ought to cut the Strategic Defense Initiative. Let Members understand that the particular thing that the gentleman is talking about doing, whether a Member is for or against Strategic Defense, raises a couple of fairly troubling questions.

For example, the amount of unobligated balances in the SDI program for the rest of fiscal year 1989 is $400 million. The gentleman who brings the bill to the floor wants to obligate a billion dollars. By the end of May, that $400 million will be $200 million. That means, somewhere, we are $800 million short in his amendment. What does that mean? Well, it means if Members are going to take it all out of SDI, what will have to be done is deobligate funds already under contract. In other words, take contracts that have presently been let and pull those contracts back. We have to pay the liabilities on those contracts. We have to do all the things that are necessary to deobligate. What would that mean? Well, across the country it means that 19,000 contractors' personnel would be laid off. In addition, we would get termination liability costs, and there would be significant program disruptions for many of the 1,200 SDI contracts which include about 250 small businesses and universities.

Now, before we get all enthusiastic about star wars versus drug wars and all of that, let us think about the impact across the country. Are we willing to have 250 small businesses and universities undermined by action that we take precipitously on this floor? Are we willing to have over 1,200 SDI contracts undermined? Are we willing to have 19,000 people lose their jobs as a result of playing politics on the House floor? I am not certain that that is a wise action to think about. I also think that it makes a mockery of the system here to suggest that we all of a sudden find money that is not really available.

I mean, if there is only $200 million available in one account at the end of the month and we are obligating for the rest of the year an additional billion dollars out of that account, it seems to me that we are playing with funny money somewhere and that we are coming up with awfully phony economic arrangements. So I think that we have to look at the real nature of some of the proposals that will be before us within the next, hopefully, few minutes, but certainly are likely to come before this floor one way or another over the next couple of months and certainly during the length of this Congress.

Mr. Speaker, with that I think I have covered the topic.

WAR ON DRUGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NEAL of North Carolina). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I would like to call attention to the Members of the House the fact that we now pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, that symbol of our country, and a shocking thing happened this morning when we opened up the session and the Speaker recognized a Member of the House to read the Pledge, and there was quite a bit of confusion. There were a lot of people in the well, and perhaps all Members were not listening. But I was shocked to look up in the Press Gallery and see only two Members up there, both sitting down during the delivery of the Pledge of Allegiance. I do not know whether they could not hear or were not aware that the Pledge was taking place, but I would like to call attention to the press and give them the benefit of the doubt that when the Pledge is offered every morning in this House, that the person delivering the Pledge asks all Members to rise, place their hand over their heart and join in pledging allegiance to the flag. I would certainly hope that whoever those two Members were up there that they were listening to this and that they remember, and I hope that they join Members in standing and paying proper respect to the flag.

Mr. Speaker, there is this question of money being appropriated to deal with this terrible problem facing the American people today and that is the drug war. Yes, we should be dealing with it. Like other areas, it is not always necessary just to throw money at the problem and think that is going to solve it.

Two words come to mind. Those two words are supply and demand. If there is a demand for drugs by the American people, there will always be a supply. It does not matter how much interdiction there is, how much money is spent on the Coast Guard and the police and the military and the Border Patrol. America is never going to stop the drugs from coming into this country to satisfy the demands of people that are using those illegal drugs.

So it is not a question of how much money we spend on interdiction, how much money we spend on rehabilitation, which is necessary, or how much we spend on education; it is what we do about the demand. Nancy Reagan, when she was the First Lady, led a great fight with the slogan, "just say no," but "just say no" is not enough. Yes, it is good, but it is not enough.

I raised five children who were teenagers in late 1960's and 1970's, and I can recall even back in those days, when drugs were not widespread throughout the suburban areas and particularly the rural areas like the one I represent in the Adirondack Mountains in upstate New York, that some of my children were being snubbed by others and being sort of outcasts because they would not use drugs.

We should think about that. If we are going to deal with the real problem, and that is the demand, we are going to have to turn that around, and the American people are going to have to snub those other American people that use drugs. As for students in the high schools, if they are using drugs, their peers ought to stand up and identify them and squeal on them because they are breaking the law. There is nothing wrong with squealing on a law-breaker, no matter what the case.

If there are school teachers and there are other school teachers in their little enclave who smoke marijuana, then the other teachers ought to identify them.

I cannot recall the name of the school, but I heard about one principal out in Ohio. I was told by our new drug czar, Bill Bennett, that that principal tells the students and the teachers in his school that "The first time you are caught using drugs, we are going to tell you about it, we are going to warn you, and the second time we are going to tell the police." That is the way it should be. Whether it is students, whether it is athletes, whether it is school teachers, whether it is our fellow workers, that is the way it should be. And I am going to tell the Members right now that if I ever see a Member of Congress smoking a marijuana stick or taking cocaine, I am going to identify that Member because I think the public ought to know about it.

If there is a fellow worker on an assembly line using drugs, his fellow workers ought to stand up and ridicule him and hold him up to scorn. If you are an executive and you go to a cocktail party and all of a sudden there is marijuana being smoked or a pill being taken by somebody over in the corner, you ought to identify him and point him out to your peers. That is the way it should be all across the way.

There are cases where we have young doctors giving medical care to the American people smoking marijuana, and that is illegal, and unless we hold these people up to ridicule and scorn, we are never going to deal with this demand.

It does not cost 5 cents, not a nickel, to tell the person next to you, "I don't want anything to do with you. I don't want to sit next to you at a football game, I don't want to ride in a carpool with you, I don't want anything to do with you, and I want the world to know you are a lawbreaker." Then and only then are we going to deal with this problem. That is the only way we are going to cut down on the demand, and it does not cost a nickel.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SOLOMON. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his statement, because the gentleman is talking about a zero tolerance policy that goes well beyond law enforcement.

We have heard a lot about zero tolerance, that we will not tolerate drugs coming into the country, and the Customs agents try to stop it and it has been somewhat controversial when they have seized fishing boats and a number of other things. There is zero tolerance for law enforcement officers, but the fact is that unless there is zero tolerance publicly for these who evade the law and break the law by using drugs, we are not as a society going to be able to deal with this problem.

There are 23 million casual users of drugs in this country, and that is about 10 percent of the country that is at least involved in the casual use of drugs. They cannot be doing that without other people knowing and understanding that it is being done, and the moment that you say, "It's OK with me, it is him, not me, that is involved," you are contributing to the fact that your kids are exposed to drugs, that your community is exposed to drugs, and that your Nation is being undermined by drugs, because those people have to buy that product somewhere. They are buying it from an illegal empire, and $150 billion worth of cash goes into that empire. That then allows them to buy crooked lawyers, it allows them to buy guns and ammunition, it allows them to fund whole armies, and it allows them to fund peasants who are growing this poison in other parts of the world.

That is where the money comes from. It comes from these people who go down on the street and buy this poison and use it themselves or give it to others, and we ought to be as a society thoroughly intolerant of those kinds of folks.

The gentleman is absolutely right, it does not cost us a dime to be intolerant, and it has a tremendous social advantage to it because those people then become isolated, and none of us in our lives likes to be isolated. None of us likes to be set apart and scorned. So we begin to have a social context in which drug use is an unacceptable social behavior, and that changes the nature of the problem dramatically.

If we could lower the number of people using drugs from 23 million down to a far lower number, we would cut the amount of money that goes into the drug empire, and we would begin to cause drastic changes as far as the drug dealers are concerned in what they are able to do; they would not have the kind of money that they now are able to get in the drug market.

So I would commend the gentleman for his statement. He is absolutely correct. And I want to thank the gentleman also for participating yesterday in a hearing that was held by the Republican Study Committee where we looked specifically at the question of what we call user accountability, in other words, holding people accountable for their actions, namely, holding people who use drugs accountable for what they do and suggesting that one of the things that needs to be explored is a far greater use of Federal power to stop these people. Again, it does not cost a lot of money, for instance, to deny somebody food stamps who is a drug user or to deny housing benefits to people who are drug users. Those people who are convicted of that kind of crime or who are found through testing programs to be drug users ought to be denied Federal benefits. The one power this Government has is not just spending money to solve problems but denying money to people who are part of the problem. It does not cost the taxpayers anything to deny people the money who are part of the problem we face, who are costing us money.

When we want to spend $800 million to upgrade the amount of money being spent on the drug war, we ought to think about the fact that maybe we can get most of that money back by denying benefits to those 23 million Americans who are out there using the drugs that are causing us the problem and who are causing us to have to spend the money. I wonder how many Members who come to this floor talking about the drug war are willing to say: "If you use drugs, no student loans. If you use drugs, no food stamps. If you use drugs, no welfare benefits. If you use drugs, no public housing." I wonder how many of them are willing to do that. That would not cost us much money, but it surely would be effective.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, let me just thank the gentleman first for his remarks. We know that they are going to get that opportunity because the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER] has been one of the leaders in introducing amendments to various pieces of legislation which deal with drug testing and which deal with this terrible problem.

This Member of Congress led the fight, beginning back in 1982, to establish a lawful policy of this Nation that any young man who refused to register for the draft was not entitled to any benefit from the Federal Government: student loans and grants, food stamps, job training, nothing. If they refused to register for the draft, they would get no help from the Federal Government.

We are going to do that. I am going to join with the gentleman from Pennsylvania in offering legislation and offering amendments to every piece of legislation that comes before this body that says that anybody who uses drugs is not entitled to any benefit of the Federal Government, bar none. Then let us see how they feel about that.

Now, the other side of the aisle, with all due respect, did join us in overwhelmingly supporting the Solomon amendments back in the early 1980's, and that became the law of the land. It resulted incidentally, I would say to my good friend, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, in a compliance rate for registration today that is greater than at any time in the history of this Nation prior to the Second World War and the First World War, anytime the draft has been in effect. I would ask the Members to listen to this: We now have a 98.8-percent compliance by the young men of this Nation who live up to their obligations as useful citizens and who obey the law of the land.

So, Mr. Speaker, let us make the law of the land, "No use of drugs, and, if you do use it, you don't get any help from this Federal Government and from the taxpayers of this Nation."

Mr. Speaker, let us let the 220 million Americans who do not use drugs stand up to those 22 million that do, and that way we will eliminate this demand once and for all.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. SOLOMON. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] that he is absolutely correct, and the point is that we get some secondary benefits out of this, too. Some of the same people who probably argue against denying benefits to people who use drugs argued last year, at least briefly, against the drug-free workplace concept, but what we have found is that we have implemented the drug-free workplace concept, which is a policy of intolerance, that people finding that kind of intolerance among employers are now calling drug counseling centers and saying to them, "How do I get off drugs," or, "How long do I have to stay off drugs in order to pass the test to get the job?"

What is happening, Mr. Speaker, is that those drug counselors then are able to begin talking to these folks who may never have come to their attention before, and, before they get arrested, they are putting them into rehabilitation programs, and we are beginning to deal with the problem right at that level.

So, it does have an impact. If we do begin to cut off Federal benefits, like in this case we are going to cut off Federal contracts from employers who do not have the policy. The employers, therefore, get tough, and employees have to begin to deal with how it affects their personal lives, and guess what? It has an impact on society, and it is not costing us huge amounts of money to do this. In fact, the money is being spent by many of these employers, but it is in their best interest to do that because they get increased productivity because they have drug-free workplaces.

Now it is those kinds of programs that make some sense in terms of dealing with this whole thing, and yet all we often hear in this body is how much money are we willing to spend? How much more money are we willing to put forward? I just think that the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] has hit upon exactly the direction that we need to go, and that is that we have to become specifically intolerant. User accountability has to be raised to a high level as a part of the overall drug war.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I certainly thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER] for his remarks.

At this time, Mr. Speaker, I am going to yield back the balance of my time, and I hope that we have some kind of an agreement in the offing that is going to bring this supplemental budget back to this floor.

Let us refresh all the memories of all the Members who are sitting back in their offices. We are still waiting for the supplemental to arrive on the floor. The Committee on Rules has not been called into meeting. There is no rule being considered. The veterans of this Nation are being held hostage because of whatever reasons. But, wherever these negotiations are going on, behind that door or this door, let the RECORD show that the Republican Party on this side of the aisle is in full agreement with the Democrats to bring that bill on the floor. There are only two Members of this whole entire Congress of 435 Members that are holding up this bill from coming before the floor.

Please, please, be reasonable. Go to the leadership on that side, of the aisle, and tell them, "I allow the bill to come to the floor." That is the only decent thing to do.

Mr. WALKER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SOLOMON. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, if we cannot get an agreement pretty soon, maybe what we are going to have to do is start naming those Members so their constituents can get to them directly.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I hate to do that because they are two very respected Members in the House.

Mr. WALKER. Sure, and for the moment we do not need to do that. We assume an agreement is under way.

But, as the gentleman knows, before too long this is a vital enough issue that maybe what we need to do is begin to make certain that the pressure is turned up by beginning to name names.

Mr. SOLOMON. Also, Mr. Speaker, we hate to hold up that train that is leaving for New York. I am a New Yorker, and I am not able to make that trip because of some prior obligations here in Washington, but it would not take but a minute to bring that bill out on the floor and to act on it, and we could all go home for the weekend.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

ISRAEL'S PEACE INITIATIVE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. FASCELL] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FASCELL. Mr. Speaker, on May 14 the Government of Israel announced a new initiative aimed at advancing the peace process. The decision had broad-based support in the Israeli Cabinet and has also been endorsed by the Israeli Parliament. I believe that this new initiative is a timely and constructive step. In particular the proposed elections on the West Bank which are an integral part of the Israeli initiative offer a new opportunity for meaningful progress in bridging the gap between the Palestinians and the people of Israel.

Elections, in and of themselves, unfortunately are unlikely to produce peace. But elections may offer the only chance to move away from the current violence. Elections will present an opportunity for the Palestinians to choose their own representatives to negotiate both middle- and long-term solutions to the problems which divide Israelis and Palestinians.

Decades of stalemate have left deep scars on the hearts and bodies of both Israelis and Palestinians. These scars understandably make it harder rather than easier to find new ways to craft a better future. Elections offer one chance to find a way to that future. It is my hope that those genuinely seeking peace will carefully examine the real opportunity the new Israeli initiative offers and give it the chance which it deserves.

It is my hope and expectation that the United States will continue to play a positive role in furthering peace in accordance with the spirit of the Camp David accords. To support the broad goals which the new Israeli initiative seeks the United States should try to get input from all parties so that our complementary efforts will help make Israel's new initiative a truly effective step. It is also my hope that the international community will join in supporting this constructive Israeli initiative.

THE THRIFT CRISIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York [Mr. LaFALCE] is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. LaFALCE. Mr. Speaker, as the House prepares to pass legislation to funnel massive amounts of taxpayer money into the Nation's failing savings and loan industry, I think it is important that we take a moment to look at what we are really doing.

This is the most massive bailout in the Nation's history and the winners are receiving money from the pockets of American taxpayers, not manna from heaven.

Yet, neither President Bush, the Senate, nor the House, which is likely to see floor action within the next few weeks, has taken the time to really explore the ramifications of this emergency legislation that is roaring through Congress like a train out of control.

I fear that we are losing sight of what should be some of our primary goals in this legislation—to minimize taxpayer costs and ensure an equitable sharing of the burden. Judged by these two standards, the President's plan simply does not measure up.

And the dollars will come from the pockets of taxpayers and our children and grandchildren.

There are five major problems with the President's plan: First, the cost estimates for resolving problem thrift cases are deceptively low; second, the bonding mechanism is both fiscally irresponsible and morally reprehensible and will significantly increase the costs to the American taxpayer; third, the alleged burden sharing is inequitable—the taxpayer contribution is significantly understated, the industry contribution is overstated, and other legitimate sources of income such as the States are not tapped; fourth, the application of the capital standards treats institutions inequitably and may ultimately increase the cost to the taxpayer; and fifth, efforts to draw in private capital to help minimize the resort to taxpayer funds are inadequate.

To date, Congress has effected little or no improvement.

I. RECENT HISTORY OF THE THRIFT ISSUE

It is instructive to revisit the recent legislative history of the thrift crisis. We now face, at a minimum, a $100 billion problem. That problem, if not its complete scope, was already apparent 3 years ago, in 1986, when Congress was considering FSLIC recapitalization. In that legislation, Congress developed the FICO Bonding Program, a self-help program that put the costs of recapitalizing the FSLIC squarely on the industry.

The level of that recapitalization became a serious point of contention. The industry, driven largely by concerns as to the costs it would be forced to bear, was insistent that we had a $2 to $3 billion problem, nothing more. I and others argued at the time, on the House floor and in conference, that a substantially greater amount of money—at least $15 billion in bonds—was necessary if we were to seriously address the problem. But it was impossible to garner the necessary political support for a realistic financing package.

Congress finally passed a $10.8 billion recapitalization bill in August 1987. It was too little and too late.

Had we provided for a reasonable sum of money at the time to close hopelessly insolvent institutions, we would not be facing the problem we face today. Instead, insolvent institutions continued to operate and even grow, drawing in deposits with high-interest rates. The rising cost of funds became a debilitating drain on the healthier institutions, increasing the potential scope of the problem.

Even the minimalist program Congress designed was not fully implemented. The industry never committed the full amount for which it was responsible under the FICO Program. I argued at the time that the industry was setting us up for an eventual taxpayer bailout, and that is precisely where we are today.

Congress, the administration, and the industry had a second chance on the issue just last year. By that time, the Bank Board and the industry had acknowledged that the problem was perhaps more in the neighborhood of $20 to $30 billion. I introduced two bills last year to deal with the burgeoning crisis. The first, which became law, extended for 1 year the moratorium on the departure of institutions from the FSLIC to stabilize the situation while Congress developed a comprehensive plan.

The second would have increased the recapitalization level under the FICO Bond Program by $5 billion. That legislation would have ensured that the industry was at least tapped for the $3 billion in retained earnings it had previously agreed to commit to the problem before there was any effort to turn to the taxpayer. The legislation passed the Banking Committee, but industry pressure precluded the granting of a rule and the measure never went to the House floor. As recently as 6 months ago, the industry was unwilling to admit either the size of the problem or its obligation to contribute significantly to its resolution.

Now we are finally acknowledging and trying to address the full scope of the problem. But the situation has deteriorated so badly that too many issues are getting insufficient attention in the rush to judgment. Allow me to review the major issues before us.

II. THE COST OF THE PLAN: ADMINISTRATION ESTIMATES

I am troubled by some of the "smoke and mirrors" that have accompanied the administration's cost projections.

The administration cites the overall cost of the plan at approximately $90 billion. But, the cost estimates are understated and the economic assumptions that underlie them, overly optimistic.

An analysis provided by the House Banking Committee staff of the data released to date suggests that the total cost of the administration plan, before subtracting estimated revenues, will be approximately $335 billion, including the cost of the financing corporation—FICO and REFCO—bonds, FSLIC notes, assistance agreements, guarantees, future assistance, and purchase of zero coupon bonds.

There are several reasons that the administration's estimate is so low. First of all, the administration's plan calls for the issuance of 30-year REFCO bonds. However, administration data and releases have largely focused on present value costs and have not presented as part of the costs the interest over time on the additional debt we are incurring. This understates the real cost. To make an analogy, when the average person buys a home it is the principal plus the interest that he views as his ultimate cost, not the principal alone.

In contrast to the President's proposal, committee staff projections are based on the assumption that the new REFCO bonds, like the earlier FICO bonds, will be based on a 30-year schedule. Under the plan, the interest costs over time fall primarily on the taxpayer. It is this cost that will be a continuing drain on the average citizen and economy, and that will necessitate additional constraints on spending for other important Government programs.

Second, under the administration's plan the taxpayer assumes the bulk of the responsibility for the costs associated with past FSLIC transactions. The administration caps the cost of the deals already put in place at $40 billion. Yet GAO suggests that these costs will amount to at least $70 billion when interest, subsidies, and other guarantees are included. Moreover, the cost estimates on the guarantees continue to rise.

There has been minimal cash outlay in past FSLIC-assisted transactions. The money spend largely takes the form of FSLIC notes and other guarantees that represent the Government's contribution. Long-term special assessments on the industry were already being counted to defray these costs. But, under the President's plan those assessments will be eliminated within a shorter timeframe. Taxpayer vulnerability for these past expenditures will therefore inevitably be greater.

The issue of full faith and credit on the FSLIC notes and guarantees has never been resolved. The President's plan resolves that issue by making the U.S. taxpayer the ultimate backstop for costs associated with past deals.

Third, the resolution costs the administration estimates and the premium income it anticipates from institutions which remain operating are based on the assumption that there are approximately 500 institutions in the pool of insolvents the Government must handle. Yet, several hundred more institutions may move into that pool as they prove unable to bear new financial burdens imposed and meet new capital requirements. The pool of cases to resolve will ultimately be larger and the number of remaining institutions supposed to sustain the anticipated premium inflow from the industry much smaller. As a result, the projections of costs and industry contributions are highly questionable.

Finally, the administration makes some highly unrealistic assumptions.

Interest rates: Ignoring economic cycles and projected increase in interest rates, the administration assumes that interest rates will remain stable and moderate over an extended period. The administration plan includes an initial 7.4 percent interest rate assumption. But current long-term rates are now 9 percent and FICO bonds are currently trading at 9.46 percent with many analysts suggesting further increases. If these analysts prove correct, interest rate costs on the bonds will be higher than anticipated. Interest is to be paid from insurance premiums and tax revenues. But the industry premium contribution is fixed.

Any increase in interest costs will therefore be borne by the taxpayer.

Deposit Growth: The Treasury's financial model assumes 7.2 percent annual deposit growth. Thrift institutions pay insurance premiums calculated as a percentage of their deposits and these premiums, in turn, would be used to reduce cost to the Government and the taxpayer. Thus, an optimistic assumption about growth could underestimate the impact on the American taxpayer. The Nation's thrifts had record deposit withdrawals in recent months and the situation is not stabilizing. Moreover, other aspects of the administration's plan do not make the thrift charter as attractive as it might be. In addition, the administration has stated it wants to lower the cost of funds at many troubled thrifts by requiring them to offer less attractive rates for deposits. This objective, in conjunction with the administration's desire to close a significant number of institutions, would shrink the amount of insured deposits and the base on which premiums will be assessed, leaving the taxpayer with higher costs.

Asset recovery: The administration's plan estimates $12 billion in receivership proceeds as part of the contribution the industry will make over the next 10 years. But the plan assumes that the Government will recoup approximately 40 percent of the book value of the assets of failed institutions. Experts suggest such estimates are highly optimistic. The quality of assets in the portfolios of many troubled institutions is poor and the workout problems associated with an asset pool of this size, enormous. Moreover, the plan calls for disposal of property within 5 years. Deep discounts will be demanded by investors if this timetable is adhered to and local real estate markets could be seriously destabilized, affecting other, now healthy, financial institutions.

Timetable for resolution of remaining problems: Administration cost estimates assume instant resolution of all troubled institutions—at today's costs. This is unrealistic. Each month that the resolution of problem cases is delayed adds approximately $1 billion to the cost. While the administration estimates the base cost of resolving remaining problems at $50 billion—not counting already issued notes and guarantees—committee staff analysts estimate that this figure is at least 20 percent low.

Many experts have suggested that rapid closure of insolvent institutions will reduce the ultimate costs. But closure requires hard cash to pay off depositors and to a large extent closure is not even being contemplated.

III. WHO WILL PAY?

A. THE BONDING MECHANISM: PASSING THE COSTS ON TO FUTURE GENERATIONS

Not only will the administration's plan cost more than it says, it will cost more than is necessary. Much debate has focused on whether the funding for the thrift bailout should be on or off budget. While a valid issue, that debate misses the most important point.

The central question is whether we should rely on the issuance of long-term bonds to fund this massive bailout. In my view, bonding under these circumstances is not only fiscally irresponsible but morally reprehensible. To avoid coming to grips with some tough realities, we are passing the costs of this bailout—far higher costs than would otherwise be necessary—on to our children and grandchildren.

The President and the Congress have decided to spend an additional $40 to $50 billion over the next 3 years. We will, therefore, be spenders. The issue is, will we tax and spend, or borrow and spend. In this context, I believe it is far more appropriate and morally defensible to tax ourselves rather than our children.

Bonding is appropriate for the funding of capital expenditures—investments in the future. Fiscal responsibility dictates that we not bond to cover present consumption, and certainly not to cover past consumption, which is exactly what we are doing here. The bonding mechanism suggested under the President's plan is a much higher cost solution than a direct infusion of funds. The difference in cost between a direct appropriation and the bonding mechanism could be as much as $150 billion over the 30-year period. It is the American taxpayer who will bear these costs.

Why, then, has bonding been proposed? What the administration proposes is simply another financing gimmick that will allow a further suspension of reality. This gimmick will allow us to keep the costs off budget, to solve an enormously costly problem largely with taxpayer funds while still giving the illusion that taxpayer resources are not being tapped. The costs are real, and they should be acknowledged as such.

The industry, the regulators, Congress, the administration, and the States share the blame for this crisis. We should now pay for our past mistakes. It is fundamentally unjust to require future generations to pay instead.

The administration estimates we will need approximately $40 to $50 billion over the next 3 years. In the House Banking Committee, I pressed for an amendment that would have directly authorized $50 billion over the next 3 years and urged that the unnecessary funds come from taxes, user fees, or other forms of revenue enhancement. Unfortunately, I was not successful.

While such an approach would involve some short-term pain, it would save the American taxpayer $150 billion over the 30-year life of the bonds. If we were to tax and spend, we would need slightly more than $15 billion a year for the next 3 years. If we were only to take the increase in gasoline prices that we have seen in recent weeks and direct those moneys to the solution of the FSLIC crisis, we would be well on our way.

While $15 billion a year is certainly a significant sum, it is far less than the $150 billion the American taxpayer will otherwise pay. And, under my approach, it is we, not our children and grandchildren, who would bear the burden. That is as it should be.

I will continue to advocate a direct authorization and appropriation funded by a one-time tax to handle the costs of the bailout as the bill moves to the House floor.

There is precedent for a self-financing approach. The Reagan and Bush administrations have advocated self-financing mechanisms for new programs. Indeed, last year President Reagan and Vice President Bush favored a new tax for a new program—a self-financing tax for the Medicare Catastrophic Healthcare Act of 1988. That same approach should apply here.

The administration repeatedly invokes the need for fiscal discipline to support its decisions to utilize a bonding mechanism and to keep the costs off budget. But, in my view, we have surely failed in our effort to achieve fiscal discipline if we comply with Gramm-Rudman and the demands of other industrialized countries for U.S. fiscal discipline by devising financing gimmicks to hide real costs.

We must also be attentive to how the proposed bond issuance might increase the degree to which Government borrowing—or something closely akin thereto—crowds out other borrowers in U.S. capital markets. Other borrowers are already disadvantaged in our capital markets because of the high level of Government borrowing. The REFCO bonds will fuel this problem. Increasingly greater amounts of money that could be turned toward productive investment will be deflected toward ongoing debt repayment.

B. BALANCE OF OBLIGATION BETWEEN INDUSTRY AND TAXPAYER

The administration markets its proposal as a shared commitment by the industry and the taxpayer, implying something akin to a 50-50 split. The President has rightly suggested that the thrift industry and the taxpayer share the burden of the overall costs. However, I believe the projections as to what the industry can and will contribute over time are unrealistic. Hence, I believe the taxpayer will bear the most significant portion of these costs.

First of all, the ability of the industry to contribute depends on the continuing viability of a substantial portion of thrift institutions. Moreover, the administration assumes a deposit growth rate of 7 percent and no further disintermediation in calculating premium income. Both of these assumptions are unrealistic, particularly because a significant portion of the disintermediation we are seeing is simply a function of rate differentials.

The plan locks even the healthiest thrifts that could effect a transfer to the FDIC into the FSLIC system for 5 years, gives them a seal that will mark them as second-class citizens, increases their premium costs, and leaves them with a permanent disadvantage in terms of premium costs vis-a-vis commercial banks. This will not make them very attractive to either investors or depositors.

It is hard to avoid the conclusion that healthy thrift institutions are being locked into a system so that their alleged resources can be depleted to refund the FSLIC fund. Few of these institutions may make it. Yet the plan counts on the premium inflow from surviving institutions as a major source of funds.

Second, the costs to the industry under the President's plan are fixed, while the taxpayer costs are indeterminate. Under the plan, the industry must contribute approximately $2½ billion in retained earnings and $300 million annually. Whatever costs are not covered by this industry contribution become a taxpayer obligation. Wherever under the plan there is a hole of questionable size, it is taxpayer money that must ultimately fill it.

Costs associated with past transactions beyond the ability of FSLIC to subsume are to be picked up by the taxpayer. If interest rates are higher, or deposit growth is lower, than anticipated, taxpayer money will fill the void. If additional bond issuance is necessary, the taxpayer will bear principal and interest costs. If a number of additional institutions move into insolvency and premium inflow into the new fund is less than anticipated, the taxpayer will pick up the tab. The burden on the industry is heavy, but fixed. The taxpayer is being asked to proffer a blank check.

The indeterminate nature of the taxpayer obligation is yet another reason why direct authorization and appropriation of funds financed by a special tax is a better approach. Under the administration's bonding proposal, Congress is being asked to write a blank check with the American taxpayer's signature. Once the bonding mechanism is in place, necessity may eventually dictate that higher and higher levels of bond issuances, funded by the American taxpayer, be approved. If there is to be a taxpayer contribution, it should be precisely fixed now and the source of funds identified.

The thrift industry and the taxpayer must inevitably share the financing cost. But Congress should have a precise and true picture as to the realities of the balance of obligation between industry and taxpayer before it can assess whether the balance is fair and what other options might merit consideration. The bulk of the burden under the Bush plan will clearly fall on the taxpayer.

C. THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE STATES

The President's plan involves not only a massive bailout, but a massive transfer of resources from the Northeast and Midwest to the Southwest.

It was primarily State-chartered institutions with a very broad array of powers operating under lax supervision—that were nonetheless federally insured—that broke the Federal insurance fund. In 1987, the FSLIC resolved the problems of 47 thrift institutions at an estimated cost to the insurance fund of $3.7 billion. State-chartered institutions were responsible for $2.4 billion, or two-thirds of the total. In 1988, the FSLIC resolved the problems of 205 thrift institutions at an estimated cost to the insurance fund of $30.9 billion. State-chartered institutions were responsible for $23.3 billion, or three-quarters of the total.

Of the $18.6 billion cost attributable to Texas institutions in 1988, State-chartered institutions were responsible for $16.7 billion—approximately 90 percent of the total resolution costs. Of a total of 81 Texas institutions which were involved in resolutions during 1988, 64 were State-chartered. From 1980 to 1985, deposits in State-chartered S&L's in Texas grew by a staggering 186 percent, while the growth in federally chartered S&L's in Texas grew by only 60 percent.

As a consequence of the enormous drain on the insurance fund created by these State-chartered institutions, we are now engaged in a fundamental restructuring of our banking system involving massive Federal assistance. We have a dual banking system and it is that system that we are bailing out. The States have obligations as well as rights under that system; and the duality of that system should reflect in some sharing of the costs.

It is true that the Federal Government has an obligation to both State-chartered and federally chartered institutions—the provision of insurance to depositors within legally prescribed limits. But, in the context of the administration's plan, we are not for the most part talking about liquidating institutions and paying off depositors. The administration will be relying heavily on mergers, acquisitions, and shrinkage to work out this problem. In effect, we are engaged not in a depositor payoff, but in a massive restructuring effort designed to preserve institutions and the stability of communities. The States and the Federal Government should share responsibility for that effort.

The vast majority of the problem was caused by a very small portion of the industry in a select number of States. Those who were primarily responsible for the problem should bear a reasonable portion of the cost burden of solving it. In cases where Federal Government regulators extended insurance coverage in reliance upon deficient regulatory oversight provided by the State, the State should contribute to the solution of the problem. If one segment of the industry is more culpable than another, that segment should bear a greater burden.

The Northeast-Midwest region is responsible for less than 10 percent of the estimated total cost of FSLIC resolutions, but would pay 45 percent of the tax portion of the bailout package. Over 80 percent of the FSLIC case resolutions and stabilizations in 1988 were in Texas, Oklahoma, and California. Over 90 percent of these case resolutions were generally in the South and West; less than 10 percent were in the Northeast-Midwest. At the same time, the tax effort of the Northeast-Midwest States far exceeds their tax capacity, while in the South and West, largely the opposite is true. Texas, for example, has neither a State personal income tax nor a State corporate income tax. It does have an oil and gas severance tax, the costs of which are passed on to Northeast and Midwest consumers by the companies that pay them.

There must be some regional equity in paying the costs of this bailout. Certainly, the Federal regulators are culpable, and Federal taxpayers will certainly bear the largest portion of this burden. But the lax supervision in certain States was also largely to blame. For example, Wisconsin, not unlike Texas, went through a serious economic downturn. Its thrifts, however, remained sound and healthy because of the capital standards imposed by State regulators on State-chartered institutions.

There is precedent for such a cost-sharing approach. Conditionality has been a key component of previous Government bailouts. Those benefiting the most directly paid a portion of the price. In the Chrysler bailout, for example, all those with an economic interest participated in the cost of the bailout.

In the House Banking Committee, I argued for an amendment that would have required the States to contribute some fair share toward the bailout costs. The amendment failed, but I will continue to seek some mechanism by which the States can make some reasonable contribution to the cost of the restructuring of the thrift industry as the bill moves to the House floor.

Another amendment I offered on a related issue did, however, carry. Premiums on deposit insurance paid by thrift institutions are now assessed on a flat-rate basis—that is, all institutions pay at the same rate. In my view, levying the same fees on safe and risky institutions for equivalent amounts of deposit insurance encourages excessive risktaking by the institutions. As a result, the burden of insurance losses is distributed inequitably among institutions. My amendment would permit the assessing of deposit premiums on a risk-adjusted basis. Conservatively operated institutions would pay less; "go-go thrifts" more. As a result, institutions in States that have lax oversight and supervision and allow institutions to engage in riskier activities would bear a higher premium burden. This should help discourage risktaking and protect the fund.

D. INFUSION OF PRIVATE CAPITAL

It is imprudent and unnecessary to tap taxpayer funds where private capital may be available. The administration's plan takes some important steps toward drawing more private capital into the industry. But, in my view, it does not do enough. Those provisions which do exist appear to focus on the fate of the healthiest institutions rather than borderline institutions where the need is arguably greater. I share the administration's obvious concern that any FSLIC solution must deal with the weak, but still solvent, segment of the industry as well as the bankrupt thrifts. However, I believe that increasing the amount of Federal assistance is not the only or even the best means to address this aspect of the problem.

Private capital can strengthen the condition of marginal thrifts and forestall the need for Federal assistance in the future. Before we commit huge levels of taxpayer dollars to bailing out institutions that are still salvageable, we should remove restrictions that make infusions of private capital impossible.

We are currently faced with a thrift industry that is starved for new capital and could arguably survive and prosper were that capital to be secured. Yet there are few sources from which that capital can come. Because of a variety of constraints, acquisitions of an interest by other financial institutions are forestalled and diversified firms looking for investment opportunities are precluded from looking to the thrift industry. Yet a capital contribution from such institutions could be vital to the industry and reduce taxpayer costs.

In the course of the House Banking Committee's consideration of the bill, I offered an amendment which was accepted that will permit thrift holding companies to acquire noncontrolling interests in undercapitalized, but still solvent savings institutions in transactions approved by thrift regulators. By acquiring such interests, healthy members of the thrift industry with useful management expertise will bring significant fresh capital to weaker institutions. This amendment also eliminates other impediments to investments in the industry by other diversified firms, allowing such firms to acquire failing as well as failed institutions. Under current law, such firms can invest only once an institution has failed. At that point, Government money is also required. The time to draw private capital in is before Government funds must be committed, in the hope of avoiding that eventuality altogether.

Other amendments that I offered which were approved eliminate other restrictions on the flow of capital into the thrift industry. Under current law, insurance companies which are subsidiaries of S&L holding companies cannot invest in other S&L holding companies, even when that investment is purely passive. Insurance companies are among our largest institutional investors. As we seek ac-quirors for troubled thrifts, an increasing number of companies will become S&L holding companies, and insurance companies will be precluded from investing in an ever larger array of firms. The restriction in current law removes a source of capital strength for the thrift industry and may even serve as a deterrent to potential acquirors of troubled thrifts. My amendment will permit insurance companies which are subsidiaries of S&L holding companies to invest in other S&L holding companies as long as that investment is passive. The amendment would also allow investment in thrift stock by securities firms as part of normal trading operations.

I believe we must go still further—every private investor dollar spent is another taxpayer dollar saved. As the bill goes forward, I intend to try to expand the opportunities for other diversified firms to invest in the thrift industry under appropriate guidelines.

IV. THE CAPITAL REQUIREMENTS

A. THE IMPORTANCE OF TOUGH STANDARDS

The capital requirement is the crux of this legislation. If the American taxpayer is forced to make a significant contribution to the thrift industry bailout, the imposition of tougher capital and accounting standards on the industry which will ensure this will never happen again must be a necessary quid pro quo. All of the capital proposals under discussion will impose a tougher capital standard on the industry.

We are in the situation we now face largely because institutions were able to gamble on risky investments with taxpayer dollars, in the form of Federal deposit insurance, backing them up. In such a situation, the investor realizes any gain, but the Government—and the taxpayer—bears any loss.

Investors will be more prudent only if they have their own funds at risk. Experts who have analyzed thrift industry problems point out that those institutions with positive net worth have, as a group, positively improved their position during the 1980's. In contrast, those with no or minimal positive net worth have deteriorated further.

Private capital is the appropriate buffer between the industry and its insurance fund and the best protection for the taxpayer. We must ensure that savings institutions have a real cushion to fall back on.

B. THE EQUITY ISSUE: THE NEED FOR A TRANSITIONAL RULE

While I strongly believe in tough capital requirements, I find myself in a somewhat anomalous position. Over the last several years in the House Banking Committee, I have argued repeatedly against accounting gimmicks and sleight-of-hand capital standards.

But I do not believe that we can now wipe the slate completely clean in one quick stroke without doing unnecessary damage to viable institutions and increasing taxpayer costs. The tangible capital requirement we are considering will be a new requirement for the thrift industry, and it is an appropriate one—but it cannot be met overnight.

In particular, in the early 1980's, numerous healthy institutions took over failing institutions at the behest of the Bank Board. Then, as now, FSLIC had no money to contribute in these assisted transactions. As a result, the Bank Board permitted acquiring institutions to count intangible assets—most often supervisory goodwill—on their books in exchange for the money FSLIC could not contribute. These institutions acted in reliance on a Government commitment and, in effect, bailed out an underfunded FSLIC. The rug should not now be pulled out from under them.

The inequity of the failure to provide some reasonable transition rule for these institutions becomes even clearer when we examine the 1988 FSLIC-assisted transactions. Under the Southwest plan, the Bank Board resolved the problems of numerous hopelessly insolvent thrifts in the Southwest. In most cases the technique was similar to that used in the early 1980's—the Bank Board located an acquirer for the ailing institution. Again, FSLIC had no cash to contribute. But this time the Bank Board did not grant supervisory goodwill—it issued FSLIC notes. Institutions holding those notes will now be in a position to meet the new capital standards. Institutions with supervisory goodwill on their books will not.

In the House Banking Committee markup, I urged that some accommodation be made for potentially viable institutions that will be unable to comply as quickly with the new capital standards because of their past participation in FSLIC-assisted transactions. Unfortunately, the press coverage on this issue had turned the debate into a game about who could be tougher. Certainly, we want tough standards—but those standards must be fair and reasonable as well. It is in no one's interest to throw viable institutions into the pool of insolvents that must be handled with taxpayer money. I will continue to seek some reasonable transition rules as the bill moves to the House floor.

C. THE IMPACT ON THE TAXPAYER CONTRIBUTION

The capital requirements will inevitably affect the size of the taxpayer contribution under the administration's proposal. Thrift institutions must meet far more stringent capital requirements within 2 years under the President's proposal, within 1 year under the House Banking version. The likely result is that many of the now salvageable institutions will move into insolvency.

The larger the pool of insolvent institutions, the higher the taxpayer contribution will be. The $50 billion cost that the President has estimated is based on resolving the problems of approximately 500 insolvent institutions. In fact, it is already a low estimate given this current number of insolvent institutions. If we drive more institutions unnecessarily into insolvency that cost must be higher still. Moreover, institutions pushed into insolvency are in no position to contribute the premium income which is a major source of the alleged industry contribution under the President's plan. It is the American taxpayer who will bear the increased cost—a far greater cost than anyone is presently contemplating.

There may be additional costs to the Government as well. Those institutions which carry intangible assets on their books do so generally under written agreements they have entered into with the U.S. Government, agreements which generally state that they cannot be superseded by subsequent regulations. It is a fundamental principle of law that damages are in order when a contract is breached, and those damages may well be more onerous where the contract was induced by the Government.

These institutions can—and will—sue, at great cost to the Government in terms of court costs and potential damages. Stockholder suits may also be in order. In many cases, a thrift stock institution issued a prospectus describing the thrift's capital position in accordance with the standards approved by the Bank Board. The SEC approved such solicitations. Stockholders who invested based on these representations may well have a right to recover for the inevitable loss they will incur from a drop in stock prices if the institution is found to be out of compliance with the new capital standards.

We face enormous additional costs to the Government and years of entangled litigation. As that becomes more apparent, we may well wish we had introduced some modest and equitable flexibility into the capital requirements from the start.

D. THE ALTERNATIVE APPROACHES

Allow me to review the various approaches to the capital standards that have been under discussion. Despite all the rhetoric about tough capital standards, the President's original plan was actually rather nebulous regarding the capital requirements put in place. The President's bill contends that the thrift industry must meet standards no less stringent than the capital standards for national banks by 1991, but we are left to imagine how the regulators will interpret such a standard in the thrift industry context—in fact, the standards for national banks are in flux.

The Comptroller is moving toward implementation of risk-based capital standards for national banks, but those standards have been largely developed without regard to concerns peculiar to the thrift industry. The thrift industry would fare better under a pure risk-based standard since home mortgages are weighted as low-risk items. However, it was never clear in the President's proposal whether a risk-based standard governed or a 6-percent capital floor applied regardless of the capital level required under the risk-based standards.

The Comptroller's capital standard for national banks also incorporates a 3-percent tangible capital requirement, although the President's plan does not explicitly impose a 3-percent tangible capital requirement on thrifts. Indeed, under the President's bill, thrifts could count goodwill amortized over 10 years toward meeting their capital requirement.

The House Banking Committee bill, represented in the press as soft on capital standards, was actually the most stringent proposal—far more so than the President's bill—by the completion of the amendatory process. The House proposal requires the industry to meet a 1.5-percent tangible capital requirement by June 1990, and a 3-percent tangible capital requirement by 1994, and demonstrate progressive improvement in the interim. Goodwill acquired in past assisted transactions can be counted toward meeting capital requirements in progressively smaller amounts, declining to zero percent by 1994, but the minimum tangible capital test must still be met.

According to statistics collected by the Bank Board's Office of Regulatory Activities, 1,100 of the approximately 2,700 solvent U.S.

thrifts—containing 70 percent of the industry's assets—would fail to meet the 1.5-percent tangible capital test. Between 1,450 and 1,560 institutions, containing between 77 and 82 percent of the industry's assets, would fail the 3-percent tangible capital test.

The approach developed by the Senate Banking Committee in fact had the maximum degree of flexibility. The Senate Banking proposal ostensibly embraced the standard in the President's bill—that is, capital standards no less stringent than those applicable to national banks. However, the bill also permitted goodwill—amortized over 25 years or under the terms of an existing agreement, whichever is less—to count toward capital.

Thus an institution could meet its capital requirement by counting goodwill. In effect, there was no tangible capital floor in the bill as passed by the Senate Banking Committee. Institutions that met their capital requirements only by the counting of intangible assets could grow. But they could grow only to the degree that growth was in traditional thrift assets and backed by an inflow of tangible capital. In action on the Senate floor, however, a 1.5-percent tangible capital requirement was imposed.

In effect, the Senate Banking Committee bill may have taken the best albeit not the toughest approach. That approach recognizes some harsh realities and does not throw viable institutions unnecessarily into insolvency. Certainly, institutions with no tangible capital should be subject to tighter supervision, and the Senate Banking language provided for this. But if these institutions are viable, they should not unnecessarily become part of the pool of case resolutions that will be handled largely with taxpayers dollars.

There is a continuing problem that exists under all the proposals. The administration has long argued that the 1991 deadline put forward in its proposal is not a cliff. Failure to meet the deadline was not to prompt liquidation, but growth constraints. In the course of congressional debate, the focus has also been on growth limitations as the appropriate remedy should institutions be unable to comply with new capital standards in the time-frame agreed upon. But far more than growth constraints are allowed under all the outstanding proposals.

Institutions not in compliance not only have growth limitations imposed, but they are also not in compliance under the terms of existing statutes. Such a judgment is a death sentence for these institutions. That status triggers an array of legal and operational problems that have an immediate impact on an institution's viability and profitability—a judgment that the institution is operating in an unsafe and unsound manner, and the possibility of cease-and-desist orders, consent decrees, forced mergers or a shift in management.

Where an institution is demonstrably operating in an unsafe and unsound manner such safeguards should come into play. Such a judgment should not be automatic, however, simply because an institution does not meet the deadline for complying with capital standards, particularly if it is an institution with good management and good prospects. In such cases, the imposition of growth limitations, coupled with demands for annual improvement in the institution's capital position, is the appropriate remedy.

The statute must provide more clarity regarding precisely what happens to institutions that do not meet the capital standards. We cannot rely on unfettered regulatory discretion. Some effort was made in the House Banking Committee to set clearer parameters on sanctions. But the burden of proof remains on the institution to avoid an automatic finding of unsafe and unsound operation if it fails to meet capital standards in a timely fashion. That burden belongs on the regulator. I intend to pursue this issue.

V. CONCLUSION

We are rushing to judgment on the President's proposal with inadequate attention to the basic issue I have raised here. It is imperative that we resolve these fundamental issues.

CLARIFYING THE LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM FOR TODAY

(Mr. WRIGHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, as Members are aware, we have been proceeding today in an attempt to get a general agreement which would permit us today, before the Sun sets, before this session ends today, to take action on the urgently necessary appropriations for the veterans of this country, for veterans health benefits and other things which, unless we act within a very few days, may expire for want of funds. These funds have been requested by the administration, have been requested by the director of the Veterans' Administration. They have been recommended by our committees. They have been recommended by the Committee on Appropriations, and they were included in the bill which we brought up some days ago and which because the subject of an effort to amend in order to bring all those various appropriations contained in the bill within the total budgetary amounts allowable under our budget agreement.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, because of deeply held convictions on the part of a great many Members respecting numerous priorities which confront our country, priorities that affect the homeless, priorities that affect our efforts to conduct a vigorous and effective war against drugs, as well as other priorities, we have been unable until this time to resolve an agreement.

At the present time conversations are in progress between the Democratic and Republican leadership, between people on the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on Rules. We hope to be able within a very few minutes to announce to the House an agreement by which in a bipartisan way we would permit progress to be made and an effort to be undertaken today on the most urgent of those urgent supplemental appropriations, those affecting the veterans of this country.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WRIGHT. I yield to the gentleman from Montana, my distinguished friend.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas [Mr. WRIGHT] for yielding.

As the gentlemen from Texas [Mr. WRIGHT] knows from his travels throughout the United States, in visiting with veterans, and as he knows for a not-long-ago trip to Montana, where among those he talked to were veterans, we have in our State a serious shortfall of revenues to properly keep our word, our commitments, with regard to health care to Montana's veterans. A higher percentage of Montanans have served in the military on behalf of their country than of citizens of any other State, so we have a proportionately very large population of veterans in our State, and I want to say how much we appreciate the actions of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. WRIGHT] and the action of the leadership in attempting to resolve this matter of a supplemental appropriation that will restore most, if not all, of the shortfall that our veterans' hospitals in Montana and elsewhere are experiencing.

Mr. Speaker, this is a vital matter and one that I know has taken a good deal of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. WRIGHT] time as he has valiantly tried to write this supplemental in a way that it can receive support in the House. I want to commend him and thank him for yielding to me.

Mr. WRIGHT. I thank the gentleman.

I would urge all Members to await the results of the conference now under way, and with confidence look forward to our being able to resolve that matter today.

Other matters of vital urgency and equal interest to the country are questions of drugs, questions of the needs of the homeless population of this country, which will await further action. They are not yet at the emergency point where failure to appropriate within the next day or hours would cause cutbacks in immediate service.

So pending the moment when we can get agreement on the manner in which those various matters could come before the floor, we are hoping to be able to attend to those urgent matters concerning the veterans' population today.

I think every American feels a special responsibility to those people who have sacrificed their wholeness in defense of our Nation. We have a peculiar sense of commission to them. Of all the things we certainly never would want to allow to lapse, health care for the veterans' population of America is highest among that priority.

THE NORTHERN SPOTTED OWL IN THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST AND ITS IMPACT ON THE TIMBER INDUSTRY

(Mr. AuCOIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Oregon is recognized for 1 minute.

There was no objection.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the Chair recognizing me. I thought as we await the outcome of some of the discussions going on over the floor that perhaps Members of the House would like to be informed about the confrontation between the northern spotted owl in the Pacific Northwest and its impact on the timber industry, which is an industry that is very important to my constituents.

I have been waiting for a chance to have your undivided attention, and now that I have it, I would like to fill this time.

If the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] whose district depends on wood products from the Pacific Northwest wishes me to yield to him, I would be happy to yield to him.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. AuCOIN. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I have great interest in the subject matter the gentleman just brought up. Perhaps he would include the great horned owl of the great Adirondack Mountains, which has a similar impact on the wood industry as the great northern spotted owl.

Mr. AuCOIN. I did not know about the horned owl. I knew about the northern spotted owl. In the Pacific Northwest, the northern spotted owl is a creature that has as its habitat old growth forests, old growth trees.

It is estimated, if you can believe it, that some 1,000 acres, according to some estimates, are needed to be set aside and preserved from timber harvesting in order to protect one nesting pair of spotted owls. That is 1,000 acres of timberland. Another estimate is 2,700 acres of habitat necessary to be undisturbed in order to protect one nesting pair of northern spotted owl.

You can understand what an impact this has on the timber industry in the Pacific Northwest. It seems to be that I am being told you have all learned enough now about the northern spotted owl and I am happy to yield back the balance of my time.

THE GREAT NAVY BEAN AND SUGAR BEET OF MICHIGAN

(Mr. TRAXLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAXLER. Mr. Speaker, I was terribly interested in the horned owl, but I think there is some information that this membership and the people of America ought to have, and that concerns the navy bean, of which 80 percent of that crop is grown in my district.

I want each of you to know that there is no more nutritious vegetable in the entire United States, and indeed, the world, than the navy bean.

Furthermore, with the emphasis upon colon cancer and health, you ought to be aware that it produces the highest fiber of any fruit or cereal grown in these United States.

While I am not going to speak about the distraction of the bean, it ought to be in every American's diet and it ought to be served, in my judgment, at least every day. If that were the case, there would be an immense amount of prosperity in my district. The Nation might suffer from some other problems, but I suggest there is enough of that in this body already.

The other commodity that I want to refer to is that of the wondrous beet. The sugar beet is to my district what the Bible is to other parts of the country.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAXLER. I am delighted to yield to my owl friend, the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, I cannot believe the gentleman asked me to stop talking about the northern spotted owl of the Pacific Northwest so that we could hear about the gentleman's sugar beet. I am surprised, I say to my friend.

Mr. TRAXLER. I may have to reclaim my time to talk about the beet. The gentleman wants to know about the beet, does he not?

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield further, I wanted the gentleman to know about the northern spotted owl, but I will listen to the story about the beet.

Mr. TRAXLER. The sugar beet, Mr. Speaker, is to my district, as I said, what the Bible is to some other parts of America and the world. Fundamentally, it is the way in which my farmers pay their land contracts and their mortgages.

It is due to the generosity of the American public and this Congress that it is held in such high esteem through the domestic sugar program.

I want the gentleman to know that there is no finer sweetener that has ever been devised than that which comes from the beet.

I ought to mention, too, that cane sugar is also an outstanding sweetener as well.

There is another thing to be said for corn sweetener, and that is that it comes from corn.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. TRAXLER. I am pleased to yield to the gentleman from Oregon on the spotted owl.

Mr. AuCOIN. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding to me.

It looks like the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE] is arriving, but I wonder if the gentleman might yield to the gentleman from New York who has a horned owl that he has been very eager to talk about?

Mr. TRAXLER. I would like to get a report on the bean situation in New York, if I could.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAXLER. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, we do not have any navy beans in New York, but we have the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE] and that is just as good.

Mr. TRAXLER. Mr. Speaker, if I can reclaim my time, the gentleman from Massachusetts is knowledgeable on tomatoes. He knows something about corn as well. I am always pleased to welcome him to the agricultural conference and to the caucus. He is a strong supporter of both the navy bean and the Michigan beet.

SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS, FISCAL YEAR 1989

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I send to the desk the bill (H.R. 2402) making supplemental appropriations for the Department of Veterans' Affairs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1989, and for other purposes and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 2402

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to provide supplemental appropriations for the Department of Veterans Affairs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1989, and for other purposes, namely:

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

VETERANS BENEFITS ADMINISTRATION

COMPENSATION AND PENSIONS

For an additional amount for "Compensation and pensions", $701,481,000, to remain available until expended.

READJUSTMENT BENEFITS

For an additional amount for "Readjustment benefits", $22,212,000, to remain available until expended.

LOAN GUARANTY REVOLVING FUND

For an additional amount for "Loan Guaranty Revolving Fund", $120,100,000, to remain available until expended.

VETERANS HEALTH SERVICE AND RESEARCH ADMINISTRATION

MEDICAL CARE

For an additional amount for "Medical care", $340,125,000: Provided, That of the sums appropriated under this heading in fiscal year 1989, not less than $6,800,000,000 shall be available only for expenses in the personnel compensation and benefits object classifications.

DEPARTMENTAL ADMINISTRATION

GENERAL OPERATING EXPENSES

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For an additional amount for "General operating expenses", $24,900,000, of which $15,000,000 shall be derived by transfer from "Construction, minor projects": Provided, That in the appropriation language under this heading in the Department of Housing and Urban Development-Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1989, insert a period after $774,316,000" and delete the language that follows.

No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE], and pending that I yield myself such time as I may require.

Mr. Speaker, we have all recognized the need to look after the veterans and the Veterans' Administration.

H.R. 2402 provides a total of $1,208,818,000 for:

Medical care	$340,125,000
Compensation and benefits	701,481,000
Readjustment benefits	22,212,000
Loan guaranty revolving fund	120,100,000
General operating expenses	24,900,000

Of this amount, $843,793,000 is mandatory and the balance is needed to maintain the medical care employment level at the level of 194,720 full-time equivalent employment called for in the fiscal year 1989 appropriations bill and to administer the program.

Every Member is for taking care of the needs of the veterans and of the Department of Veterans' Affairs. When representatives of the American Legion and the VFW arranged a conference with me to discuss the needs of the veterans this year, I prepared a bill to take care of the needs of the VA, which came largely because of the demand at the last minute by colleagues on the other side of the Capitol last year that we agree to a further reduction in the budget ceiling of $1.9 billion.

The VA Subcommittee and the other subcommittees went along developing a supplemental appropriations bill.

After we reported the bill, the executive branch called for substantial reductions in other programs handled by the various subcommittees and I requested each subcommittee to review the earlier determination.

This was done.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 2072 provides funds to meet dire emergencies in the area of drugs and crime, veterans programs, guaranteed student loans, operating crop loans, U.N. Peacekeeping, migration and refugee assistance, trade adjustment assistance, forest fire fighting and rehabilitation, reimbursement to States for foster care and adoption assistance, and to the Internal Revenue Service for processing tax returns and investigation, collection, and taxpayer services.

After a leadership proposal to provide offsets by 57 of one-hundredth of 1 percent governmentwide cut was rejected, I asked the subcommittee chairmen involved to either provide offsets or to deter programs to the regular 1990 bills in order to meet the intent expressed by the House.

Agreement has been reached that an amendment to be offered by myself which reduces H.R. 2072 by $1,005,611,000 through offsets and deferrals will be made in order and that points of order will be waived against provisions making transfers or offsets from funds beyond the scope of this bill that are in violation of clauses 2 and 6 of rule XXI; that the amendments be considered en bloc, and they not be subject to amendment or division.

The effect of the amendment is to:

Reduce forest fire reimbursement.....	-$258,000,000
Provide offsets for farm operating loans.....	-75,000,000
Defer FAA operations for later action.....	-70,700,000
Provide payments for operation of low-income housing assistance by transfer.....	-88,000,000
Provide FEMA emergency food and shelter assistance by transfer.....	-15,000,000
Defer VA homeless assistance.....	-30,000,000
Defer HUD homeless assistance.....	-108,500,000
Defer Justice Department antirape package.....	-43,186,000
Defer NOAA operations and research.....	-32,200,000
Defer civil liberties public education fund.....	-250,000,000

Provide transfer authority to the Judiciary.....	-16,240,000
Provide FCC by reprogramming.....	-500,000
Defer Securities and Exchange Commission.....	-18,285,000
Total effect of amendment.....	-1,005,611,000

□ 1250

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, veterans are crying for our immediate help, and this bill represents the last chance we have to deliver it before Memorial Day.

Every Member of this great institution has heard from veterans who are being denied basic medical care due to shortfalls in VA funding. Across this proud country, prescription orders are not being filled; worn artificial limbs are not being replaced; and needy patients are being turned away in droves from understaffed medical facilities. The problem is real. We know it is real.

And yet we have been incapable of providing the emergency response that the situation requires.

Faced with a crisis threatening our Nation's freedoms and security, our veterans in Germany, in the Pacific, in Korea and in Vietnam knew exactly how to respond. They forgot their political and personal differences long enough to join together and face the common enemy head-on. Today, the common enemy is the insidious decay of a medical care system upon which thousands upon thousands of American veterans rely.

The proven strategy of a united front is the only one which is certain to arrest the decline. At least this new bill offers an opportunity to join together and actually enact something important to all of us: emergency fiscal year 1989 funding for the VA.

It truly breaks my heart that these veterans, who have sacrificed so much to preserve the freedoms institutionalized by this great body, have, during their hour of greatest need, been left twisting in the wind while congressional leaders continue to play political chess games with their fate.

Friends, we must disengage the engine from the train and permit a separate vote on VA funding.

The other programs in H.R. 2072 as reported are all worthy of consideration, but only VA health care constitutes the type of "dire emergency" that warrants immediate and urgent consideration outside the regular appropriations process. But we can no longer permit our sick and ailing veterans to be held hostage to other programs within H.R. 2072, however compelling those programs might be.

Mr. Speaker, this bill gives our veterans a fair break. They have already made the sacrifice, and we have incurred a debt. We owe it to our veterans to provide adequate medical care. This bill is the only sure way of guaranteeing that medical services, will be there when the veterans need it.

Let us live up to our commitment; support this bill.

Mr. WEBER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONTE. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. WEBER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the gentleman for his statement, and I certainly support his remarks.

As I recall, there was a bill introduced in this Congress by the gentleman from Massachusetts that would have solved this problem long ago, was there not?

Mr. CONTE. Reclaiming my time, yes, I did file one, House Joint Resolution 272.

Mr. WEBER. House Joint Resolution 272. Did we not seek to have that bill brought to the floor of this House just within a matter of several hours ago almost?

Mr. CONTE. Yesterday.

Mr. WEBER. Almost a full day ago? Why did we not vote on that bill at that time? Can the gentleman enlighten us a bit?

Mr. CONTE. I was not recognized by the Chair at that time to make that kind of a motion, and it required unanimous consent. I was not given that. But it is not a question of pride of authorship or anything else. It is something that is a dire, dire emergency right here. It is needed, and it has got to be passed. I am pleased that we are finally going along with the idea that we propounded here yesterday, and I do not care who gets the credit.

Mr. WEBER. If the gentleman will yield further, I certainly commend my leader for his modesty, but I want the gentleman from Massachusetts to know that many of us, when we vote "yes" on this, if we get that opportunity, in our minds we are going to be thinking "272, 272; thank you SILVIO CONTE for 272."

Mr. CONTE. I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TRAXLER].

Mr. TRAXLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, let me say to my distinguished friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts, that he is put in a rather embarrassing position by my good friend, the gentleman from Minnesota, on House Joint Resolution 272; 272 was introduced on May 17, and it is a very fine resolution and does the good thing that we are going to do today. The gentleman is to be commended for putting a resolution in yesterday that does what we are going to do today, and we regret that it could not have done the day he did it.

Mr. WEBER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAXLER. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. WEBER. Mr. Speaker, I am always glad to engage in a dialog with my good friend from the Bean State.

Mr. TRAXLER. Beets, too.

Mr. WEBER. Mr. Speaker, I do not understand how the gentleman can suggest that my friend, our leader, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE], who has been doing battle in behalf of the veterans nigh on these many months, is in an embarrassing position when the gentleman from Michigan and others now have to explain to us why they now want to pass the bill that they prevented us from considering yesterday.

Mr. TRAXLER. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman aware that we have been trying to bring the supplemental bill up for some time, but that it was the gentleman's side of the aisle that objected to it yesterday or the day before. I forget, because we have had so many different versions.

May I suggest to everyone that we can go on with this all afternoon, and I do have an important statement to make. I just want to say to my friend that there is enough blame here in terms of whether we should have done it yesterday or today, and I am sure we will all take our share of it.

I want my colleague, the gentleman from Massachusetts, to know that he is to be commended for putting the resolution in yesterday.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAXLER. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman and I have the greatest respect for the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. Speaker, I wrote to Dick Darman, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, on February 23, urging upon him the need for a supplemental in the area of Veterans' Administration health care.

I will put that letter in the RECORD at this point:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, February 23, 1989.

Hon. RICHARD DARMAN,
Director, Office of Management and Budget,
Washington, DC.

DEAR DICK: This country has encountered an immediate crisis in the area of Veterans Administration health care. Due to shortfalls in the FY 89 budget, there has been a significant reduction in delivery of medical benefits to veterans—benefits on which veterans rely and for which the U.S. citizenry, through its elected representatives, has agreed to provide.

The impacts of the current shortfall are severe. Last fall, the V.A.'s Department of Medicine and Surgery proclaimed that an additional $633 million would be required in FY 89 to provide services at the FY 88 level. Some treatments are currently being denied to previously eligible veterans. Nursing and staff shortages have closed thousands of V.A. hospital beds at a time when the health care needs of the aging veteran population have substantially increased. Confidence in the Government's commitment to the well-being of those who have bravely served our country is being eroded.

I understand that the V.A. has requested FY 89 Supplemental funding of $314 million for V.A. medical programs. The V.A. has also requested an addition of $512 million in new budget authority to the Administration's FY 90 budget proposal. I urge your swift and favorable consideration to these requests.

I am not oblivious to the impacts such increases might have on the national deficit. Nevertheless, the total cost seems a small price to pay to honor our commitment to those who have protected and strengthened this country through military service. Further, the efficient delivery of services through the V.A. system may well save tax dollars that would otherwise be spent on Medicare or Medicaid.

The time to assign blame for the emaciation of V.A. health care delivery has passed. The time to act is now.

Thank you for your consideration of this urgent matter.

Sincerely,

SILVIO O. CONTE,
Member of Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I was urging him to send up a supplemental for the veterans on February 23.

After the gentleman and I talked soon thereafter about this supplemental, I went down to the White House, and I worked very, very hard to change the administration's mind about the need for offsets for the veterans' money, because I knew they were controversial. We did, and the gentleman was very appreciative of that.

Mr. TRAXLER. Indeed, I was.

Mr. CONTE. The gentleman is a good man and a good friend.

Mr. TRAXLER. I thank the gentleman, and I am honored to be called that.

Mr. Speaker, I want to just conclude my remarks with a brief statement.

Mr. Speaker, let me say that this whole issue, I think, has served a very, very useful purpose. Today's debate and the discussions that have gone on today and yesterday, I think, have served the American veteran well. Let me tell the Members why.

The bill that we have before us provides a $340 million supplemental for the medical care account in 1989. The bill also includes mandatory appropriations for veterans' compensation and pensions in the amount of $701 million, $22 million for the GI bill, and $120 million for the loan guaranty revolving fund. There is nearly $25 million for the general operating expenses account.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the subcommittee members, and my distinguished friend, the gentleman from New York [Mr. GREEN], for their work on this measure. I also want to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE], who is ex officio, and certainly the full committee chairman, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN], for the work they did in assisting us in the subcommittee in arriving at these figures whatever that time period was in the distant past.

What is important here is that while we have been talking about the dire need for a VA supplemental for medical care that we understand how we got here and where we are going, because the VA medical account is, I think, from the conversations I have heard here on the floor, a very high priority of the membership.

I want to tell Members my assessment is that it will not be too many weeks before that priority will be put to the test when we bring the 1990 VA, HUD and Independent Agencies Appropriation bill to this floor. If Members think we are having fun today, watch me on that day.

What is this all about? It is about politics, and if you have not figured that out, you are really behind the curve. Let me tell Members what the politics of VA medical care is.

What was the President's request for VA medical care, for instance, in 1986. Get this: It was 192,000 FTE's, full-time equivalent employment. We gave him 193,000. That is what Congress did.

In 1987 the President's request to the Congress was for 185,000 FTE's. These figures come from budget documents, these are not made-up figures, not hype. Hey, this is not hype, this is reality, truth. Get this; truth on the floor of the House. The President requested 185,192 in 1987. Do my colleagues know how much the Congress gave him? You were generous, you did what was right for the American veteran and you gave him 194,140 FTE's, the barest number possible.

Do Members know what the request was in 1988? It was 190,330. The Congress, all of us, with the leadership of the gentleman from Mississippi, SONNY MONTGOMERY, insisted that it be 194,140.

Now in 1989 the request was for 192,358. We gave them 194,720.

Now listen to this one. Now what they want and what the President requests for 1990 for medical personnel to staff the VA is 186,194.

I will tell Members we cannot do it, we cannot do it for less than 194,700, and even at that level I want to assure Members we are not being generous to the American veteran.

I hope that whatever the decision is on the part of the subcommittee, and I cannot speak for it, I can only tell you it is my hope that the Members will say, based on what you have all told us right out here on this floor, and you are all on the record that you are for veterans' medical care—that when we bring a decent, responsible figure that you are going to support it on this floor. But remember when we appropriate that money for veterans' medical care it has to come from someplace. When we go above the President's recommended 186,000 personnel level and we come back with a figure, for instance, of 194,700, that money is going to come out of something that Members may think is more important. We are going to have fun then, and we are going to see who the friends of the veterans are.

Will Members remember my statement? Remember what I just told you, because some of the Members that have been banging that microphone this morning are going to suggest there are other portions of the 1990 bill that will be on the floor at that time that adequately funds veterans programs but, does not fund their favorite portions properly. They are going to want to take some money from someplace and fund their favorite projects. That is when we are going to have a lot of fun, and that is how we separate real from phony.

I want to commend the Membership for their interest, their concern, and their dedication on behalf of the American veteran. We look forward to the passage of this bill and the Senate taking it up most promptly and moving it on to the White House.

I want to place in the record at this point a table on requested and funded FTE levels.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAXLER. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the gentleman from Michigan on an excellent statement. His committee has one of the most difficult jobs in the 302(b) allocation of any Appropriations Subcommittee in the Congress with veterans, with housing, with clean water, with the space program, and many other important programs.

Can the gentleman tell me, when we are having such difficult times like this, should we embark on a big space station program? Where are we going to get the money?

The gentleman does not have to answer me now. We can talk about it later.

Mr. TRAXLER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's question. As the Japanese would say, that is yet to be determined. And each of the agencies, as any member of the subcommittee will tell you, within our jurisdiction is our favorite agency and we are committed within the resources available to us to do the very best for each and every one of them we can.

Again, I thank the gentleman and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. GREEN].

Mr. GREEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished ranking minority member of the full Appropriations Committee for yielding time to me, and I rise for two purposes. First, to express my appreciation to the distinguished ranking minority member of the full committee and to my chairman, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TRAXLER], the distinguished chairman, and the ranking minority member of the Veterans' Affairs Committee for their efforts early on in this session to force the OMB to face up to the problem that we were facing in funding veterans' medical care. This is truly a crisis.

The testimony before our Appropriations Subcommittee demonstrated that fully 95 percent of the veterans being cared for by the VA medical services are service-connected disability veterans, so that this really is the group to which we have the greatest obligation as a nation.

I also rise to echo the point made by my distinguished chairman as to the problems that this account is going to create as we shortly move on to the fiscal year 1990 appropriation bills. Plainly, if this account is more than $300 million short with just the balance of this year to go, it is many hundreds of millions of dollars more short in terms of the full fiscal 1990, and we are certainly going to have to find within our 302(b) allocation in our subcommittee the money to make that good above and beyond what the administration has requested for the VA medical account.

So I hope all Members, as the appropriation process now unfolds, will be very much aware of that priority and understand that that is going to be a very significant factor in shaping not only the veterans' portion but the entire Veterans, HUD, and independent agencies appropriation bill for fiscal year 1990.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to recap briefly and then ask the administration to do something.

On May 10 the head of OMB sent up a letter which, among other things, said this: "Much of that newly-provided 1989 drug funding remains unobligated."

To the untrained ear, that sounds as if to say there is more money available than needs to be there for drug control. Actually, of course, there is unobligated money, there has to be unobligated money. Under the Anti-Deficiency Act agencies should spend no more than about one-twelfth per month in the salaries and expenses accounts. So most of the accounts in the anti-drug effort are on target; they are in the 50 percent range at the end of 6 months. There are three or four accounts that appear to have unobligated balances greater than they need to be, but in the law enforcement area there are none of them that appear to have more money than they need.

We have not been able to identify the individual accounts directly involved in the war on drugs which contain more funding than is needed or will be used in fiscal 1989. I would appreciate receiving by Monday noon the identification of each individual account of anti-drug funding which in your opinion has a surplus that will not be needed or used appropriately in this fiscal year, and the amount of the surplus in each such account.

A reply came back to the chairman on Monday and it said:

□ 1310

Well, that answers that. There is no surplus that the OMB Director has identified that will not go used by the end of the fiscal year. But in addition to that he did not go forward and then identify any accounts in which there will be a surplus.

For example, $300 million was appropriated for interdiction in the Department of Defense. It does not appear at this time that there is any way they can use that money this year. But the accepted procedure, if there is a surplus in any account in one department that can be transferred to another department, is for the administration to send up a request for the transfer. They have not done so to date.

They have not identified any single account that they say there is more money in than they will need by the end of the year.

So what I am doing today is to call on them—we have a little time now that we are passing the veterans bill by itself, we will have a little time over the weekend here—and I am calling on the head of the OMB, the President and anybody else who is involved to send up to the Congress a specific identification of an account that has a surplus in it and propose the transfer of that surplus to other accounts as long as those accounts are in for the war on drugs.

If there is any such account, OMB is obligated to identify the account and the amount of money. Now if we are going to have an offset for the money that is in this bill, that is the way to get it. They can do that over the weekend.

Some say, I hear criticism around here that we are advancing some money in this bill from fiscal year 1990 requests up to fiscal year 1989. You cannot speed up the war on drugs unless you advance some money that would not have been available until next fall.

For example, in the area of prisons, we are advancing $105 million that would not have been available for obligation until next October. If they do not have that authority to obligate now instead of next October, they cannot start the process. They need that. They would only outlay $5 million in this fiscal year but they need the authority to go ahead and obligate and that would speed up by several months the building of some of those prisons.

The Bureau of Prisons needs $49.4 million to work on getting some facilities on some of these bases that have just recently been identified as surplus. They need that now rather than next fall. You cannot speed up the war on drugs unless you advance to this time some of the things they would have done next fall.

So when we are trying to find money to cover funds in one department and you want to offset those funds with unused funds in another department, the only way you can do it is for OMB to send up a proposal for a transfer.

Now as far as law enforcement is concerned, I have checked carefully with various agencies, with DEA, FBI, the Justice Department, the Marshals Service, the various agencies that are in law enforcement and they do not have a surplus. They are obligating funds in the usual and appropriate manner.

So we need more money in those law enforcement areas. The President came up here on Monday and said we need more money in those areas; and I agree with him on that. But what we need now is some cooperation from the administration to identify and support the amount of money that is needed at this time that will help us speed up the war on drugs, and if it can be offset from some other department, they need to identify those offsets. They can do that between now and next Monday.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON].

Mr. SOLOMON. I thank the gentleman for yielding this time.

Mr. Speaker, it is with a great sense of relief that I rise in support of this supplemental. I would first of all say to our good friend and good friend of the veterans, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TRAXLER] that in the budget for 1990 that was just passed, the gentleman from California [Mr. PANETTA] sitting over there and the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. FRENZEL] sitting over here were good enough to help us add an additional $220 million to function 700 in the 1990 budget which is going to go a long way toward picking up those numbers of employees that our good friend Mr. TRAXLER was talking about.

Now also Mr. TRAXLER mentioned that we were going to have some fun later on when there was going to be a question of where this money was coming from. I think he was kind of intimidating us a little bit saying that we were going to be forced to take that money out of the national defense budget of this country. Let me remind Mr. TRAXLER that every single red-blooded American that I know who served in the Armed Forces of the United States of America and now has the right to call themselves veterans, their first priority is a strong national defense and the national defense budget of this country.

Having said all that, I want to take my hat off to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TRAXLER] and the gentleman from New York [Mr. GREEN], for the outstanding job that they have done and also to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. MONTGOMERY] and the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. STUMP] for working to get what we really need for the veterans.

I want to thank even the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH] and the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER], for their understanding in stepping aside, putting their differences aside and letting this bill come before us.

I want to thank the gentleman from California [Mr. COELHO], the gentleman from Washington [Mr. FOLEY], and the Speaker of the House, and the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE], for getting this bill out here on the floor.

But I guess more than all I want to thank the majority chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN], for understanding and for putting these differences aside.

We will pass this bill today and we will come back to fight another day on other issues, and that shows a big man on the part of all these people involved. I commend you all for it. I hope you all have a nice weekend.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to my friend and colleague, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. MONTGOMERY], chairman of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. I certainly will be brief.

Let me thank my colleague, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN], for the job he has done in bringing this veterans legislation that we can vote on today, and I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE], and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TRAXLER], and the gentleman from New York [Mr. GREEN], and especially to the leadership on this side of the aisle plus the leadership on the other side, and to the gentleman from Arizona, [Mr. STUMP], and others who have worked to get this legislation before us today.

Mr. Speaker, we are not crying wolf, trying to get this funding for our veterans programs. It is needed. I certainly want to commend all so that we could have this opportunity.

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. GINGRICH].

Mr. GINGRICH. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to rise to praise the gentleman from Massachusetts. This has been a long process, these last 6 or 7 weeks, and the gentleman has hung in there, he has done yeoman's work again and again, he has been patient. He has counseled some of us who might have been less wise than he is. I think the fact that we are going to be able to send this bill to the other body this afternoon, that the veterans are going to get the help they want, that we will have a real chance that the other body will now act and pass this before Memorial Day, is in large part due to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE]. I want to say "Thank you" on behalf of everybody who cares about veterans. The gentleman from Massachusetts really has made this possible.

Mr. CONTE. I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. Speaker, I really appreciate those kind words.

Mr. Speaker, we have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want the time to pass without my saying "Thank you" to the leadership—to the Speaker, JIM WRIGHT, to the majority leader, TOM FOLEY, to the majority whip, TONY COELHO—to my friends on the committee, to my friend the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. CONTE] and all the others, plus our colleagues who have additional interests who worked today to make it possible to bring this veterans supplemental appropriations bill to the floor today.

We have had a whole lot of cooperation in order to bring this about, from everybody here, and from everybody who is interested in what we are doing.

I just want to say "Thank you" to all of them.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. MRAZEK].

Mr. MRAZEK. I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I simply wanted to say that I had the opportunity at the North Port Veterans' Administration Hospital earlier this week, on Monday, to have what might have been one of the largest field hearings in the United States with almost 1,000 veterans deeply concerned about the impact of budget cuts which totaled about 20 percent over the last 8 years and about $2.55 million specifically this year in additional cuts.

Horror stories from veterans in building 11 at the North Port Veterans' Administration Hospital complex, veterans of World War II, men who are incontinent and there are no custodial staff or nurses aides to assist them to take a shower; where registered nurses are providing showers but there are no linens to put them back into the bed; no socks, no rubber gloves for the nurses who tend to them.

We listened to stories of men who have cancer and who have to travel 3 hours to get to a linear accelerator in the Bronx in order to get radiation therapy.

Anyone who has had a loved one who needed radiation therapy is well aware of the difficulty that that continued therapy will have on their life and the idea of having to travel 3 hours in order to get it is simply unacceptable.

□ 1320

We are going to have to restore not only this money, in my view, but additional funds because really there is no villain here. There are dedicated staff people. There are dedicated administrators who want to do their best. The only villain is a lack of resources to get the job done. This is a good first down payment.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank those who have helped to put it together.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the dire emergency supplemental as introduced by the Honorable SILVIO CONTE of Massachusetts. The resolution is urgently necessary to overcome a serious budget shortfall which has the Department of Veterans' Affairs in a state of medical emergency.

Unless the bill is passed by the Congress and signed into law, the Secretary of Veterans' Affairs, the Honorable Edward Derwinski, has advised us that substantial reductions in personnel will have to commence at veterans' health care facilities across the country.

As ranking minority member of the Subcommittee on Hospitals and Health Care, we have held many hearings documenting an already insufficient level of essential health care personnel. Nurses in particular are in short supply. Without this emergency supplemental, this level will drop even more sharply.

May 19, 1989, has been identified as the date on which without supplemental funding, the Department's capital accounts will be frozen. We simply cannot allow this to happen.

The resolution before us will add $340,125,000 to the medical care account. This amount will provide 1,539 average employment, increasing the annual employment level to 191,616 full time equivalent employees. In addition, an increase of 933,000 outpatient visits would be realized.

The Office of Management and Budget has already approved a supplemental for the Department of Veterans' Affairs. It has the full support of the administration.

I very strongly urge the support of my colleagues on this resolution. This action is vitally necessary to preserve the commitment of the Nation to provide quality health care to our Nation's veterans.

Mr. EDWARDS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I am concerned about the quality of veterans health care in Oklahoma, which could be seriously impaired if the additional funds contained in this bill are not approved.

Last year, Congress approved a medical care staffing level at VA hospitals of 194,720. However, as a result of underfunding, the Department of Veterans' Affairs is estimating that staffing levels will drop to 186,000—a loss of 8,720 full-time employees. To compensate, VA medical facilities across the country have been forced to reduce staff, terminate services, and postpone needed maintenance. In some facilities, inadequate equipment cannot be replaced and medical supplies are in short stock.

The cumulative impact of these actions on veterans' health care is devastating—with many veterans being denied treatment. The VA hospital in Oklahoma City, for example, which serves many of the veterans in my district, has been forced to close one of its wards because of a shortage of nurses. The lack of funds is also contributing to additional staffing needs for pharmacists, respiratory therapists, and ward coordinators. This situation is repeated in many other hospitals around the country.

The bill before us today includes $340,000 to cover the shortfall in health care services for veterans. This funding will permit the VA to increase employment to the 194,720 level by the end of the fiscal year. It will also provide additional funds for equipment and maintenance. Failure by Congress to approve these funds will almost certainly require the VA to undertake another round of cutbacks which would force hospitals to turn away even more veterans.

There is a growing concern among veterans that their benefits are gradually being eroded. Providing the funds necessary to maintain the level of health care services is the minimum required to fulfill the obligation we have to the men and women who have served our country.

Mr. MARLENEE. Mr. Speaker, I salute the courage of the leadership of the appropriations and the Rules Committees to bring a clean bill to the House floor dealing with a $1.2 billion supplemental appropriations for veterans' benefits, which includes $340.1 million for veterans' health care. This is an extremely urgent matter, with many veterans' hospitals across America on the verge of default by June. I am absolutely delighted that veterans' funding is not held hostage to other nonemergency spending like Japanese-American reparations.

Last March, President Bush requested a $2.1 billion supplemental appropriation to honor previous obligations mandated by law. The bulk of the President's request was targeted on veterans' benefits, adequate funding for the guaranteed student loan program, and payments to States for foster care and adoption assistance.

The big spenders then added all sorts of other unnecessary Federal spending to see how much the President will tolerate in lard and pork. Every member in this body has talked about the need to control the Federal deficit. Yet, the original supplemental proposed by the Democrats in this House was double the President's request. The Democrats ballooned the administration's supplemental request to $4.7 billion.

I was angry. If that bill passed the House, it would have been good for another point or two increase in interest rates. It would have showed that we couldn't control our own voracious appetite for spending thus creating the climate for raising interest rates for another point or two. Simply put, Mr. Speaker, that bill was destabilizing for our economic future.

Yesterday, the Democrat leadership attempted to sneak another budgetbusting supplemental bill under our noses. The bill was pared down by $1 billion over the first request but it was rumored to contain some nonemergency spending, like $250 million for Japanese-American reparations. I personally find it objectionable to debate issues on the House floor with no knowledge of what is in the bill. Fortunately, many Republicans objected.

Now, we finally have an opportunity to debate a real emergency supplemental that will resolve the funding crisis at the Veterans' Administration. After weeks of cantankerous debate and bruised egos, we can finally pass a pure $1.2 billion VA supplemental bill. I add my unequivocal strong voice of support for H.R. 2402. For all the veterans across Montana, I thank God that we've finally seen the resolution of this issue. I ask my colleagues to join me to make sure that this never happens again by supporting adequate, stable funding for the VA in future budgets.

Mr. LAGOMARSINO. Mr. Speaker, as one of the cosponsors of H.R. 2402, the emergency supplemental appropriations addressing the critical needs of our veterans, I rise in strong support of the measure and urge its swift passage.

Like many of my colleagues, I recognize the extremely serious funding requirements of the new Department of Veterans' Affairs to ensure that adequate medical care and mandatory benefits are available to America's veterans. We must not forget that these brave Americans answered our Nation's call during its most pressing times of need. Now, in their hour of need the Nation must return the call.

Already, the Veterans' Department has been forced to reduce the medical services to eligible veterans because of inadequate funds. This must be reversed. We must uphold our commitments to other veterans, who made great sacrifices and still bear the scars of their service today. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2402 accomplishes these goals.

I am very encouraged that H.R. 2402, introduced just yesterday by the distinguished vice chairman and ranking Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, Mr. CONTE, has been expeditiously considered and brought before the full House for a vote. In contrast with the other recent supplemental appropriations bills, this one focuses on what is truly a dire emergency—funding veterans health care. While I recognize that there are other important programs in need of supplemental funding, these programs' needs not as time-sensitive and we can carefully consider them after passing H.R. 2402. Because some of these other proposals are more controversial than others, I am further encouraged that the majority in the committee and in the House have agreed with Mr. CONTE, me and others, to address them separately. It's about time we stopped holding veterans medical care hostage to partisan positioning on other budget and funding issues.

I strongly support this vital measure and urge my colleagues to join me in voting for H.R. 2402.

Mr. BRENNAN. Mr. Speaker, today I urge my colleagues to support the VA emergency supplemental appropriation measure to provide $340 million to the health care account of the VA. This is an important step toward restoring the highest level of service at our VA medical centers across the country.

The funding made available today will reopen surgical and psychiatric wards, reopen drug and alcohol abuse treatment facilities, and restore medical services to veterans who have been denied care because their ailments are described as "not sufficiently serious". Perhaps its most important purpose is that it will begin to restore the peace of mind that veterans used to enjoy by knowing that the sacrifices they made are remembered and appreciated by their Government.

However, while this is an important step, it is by no means the only step we have to take concerning VA hospitals. Earlier this session I introduced H.R. 1382 to provide $432 million in supplemental funds for the health care account of the VA. I believe that this figure more accurately reflects the level of the funding shortage. After this fiscal year, estimates on the budget shortfall exceed $1 billion. While we can be pleased with our actions today, our work has truly just begun.

Our veterans deserve the best medical care we can provide. While the quality of the personnel at our VA hospitals is second to none, they need more funds to adequately serve our veterans. I urge all my colleagues to work with me to adequately fund VA hospitals in future years.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I am very relieved that the House today voted to approve $340 million for fiscal year 1989 veterans health care services. As Secretary of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, Edward Derwinski, pointed out, VA hospitals are in dire need of additional funding to deliver medical care to veterans.

Without the money provided by this supplemental measure, the VA would have been forced to freeze capital accounts in spite of the increased need for updated medical equipment. Activation of almost 100 projects to provide veterans with health care services would not be possible, and at least 200 FTEE would be eliminated from VA health care facilities each pay period.

These additional cutbacks would paralyze the VA and its ability to serve the needs of our veteran population. The services affected by these cutbacks are benefits that our veteran population have earned, services that our country has pledged to deliver.

The quality of health care services we provide for our Nation's veterans has been questioned more and more frequently over the past few months. The VA has already been turning away service-connected veterans because of insufficient personnel to deliver care and we simply cannot afford to further cut back services. It is only fitting that we move quickly to provide the VA with these needed resources.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support this supplemental measure and commend my colleagues for approving the bill.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the bill (H.R. 2402) making supplemental appropriations for the Department of Veterans' Affairs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1989, and for other purposes, and that I be permitted to include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. NEAL of North Carolina) without objection. The previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OF RECESS OF THE SENATE FROM THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1989 OR FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1989, TO WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1989 AND CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OF THE HOUSE FROM THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1989 TO WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1989

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I call up from the Speaker's table a privileged Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 38) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the Senate concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 38

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring). That when the Senate recesses or adjourns at the close of business on Thursday, May 18, 1989, or Friday, May 19, 1989, pursuant to a motion made by the Majority Leader, or his designee, in accordance with this resolution, it stand recessed or adjourned until 2:15 post meridiem on Wednesday, May 31, 1989, or until 12 o'clock meridian on the second day after Members were notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this resolution, whichever occurs first; and that when the House adjourns on Thursday, May 25, 1989, it stand adjourned until 12:00 o'clock meridian on Wednesday, May 31, 1989, or until 12 o'clock meridian on the second day after Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this resolution, whichever occurs first.

SEC. 2. The Majority Leader of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the Senate and the Minority Leader of the House, shall notify the Members of the Senate and the House, respectively, to reassemble, whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The Senate concurrent resolution was concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

(Mr. GINGRICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, I ask the majority leader to share with Members the schedule for next week, and I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished Republican whip for yielding. We have considered the business for the day and for the week. The House will not be in session tomorrow. The House will meet at noon on Monday, May 22, but there is no legislative business scheduled. On Tuesday, May 23, the House will meet at noon and consider six bills under suspension of the rules, recorded votes on suspensions, H.R. 932, the Puyallup Tribe of Indians Settlement Act of 1989; H.R. 1414, to provide for the appointment of enlisted members of the Armed Forces to the American Battle Monuments Commission; H.R. 498, to clarify and strengthen the authority for certain Department of the Interior law enforcement services, activities, and officers in Indian country; H.R. 881, Coquill Restoration Act; H.R. 2344, to authorize the transfer to the Republic of the Philippines of two excess naval vessels; House Concurrent Resolution 121, to express the sense of the Congress with respect to the assassination of Col. James Rowe in the Philippines.

On Wednesday, May 24, and Thursday, May 25, the House will meet at 11 a.m. on Wednesday and 10 a.m. on Thursday and consider H.R. 2072, dire emergency supplemental appropriations for fiscal 1989, subject to a rule; unnumbered H.R., to transfer funds for antidrug initiatives, subject to a rule; and unnumbered H.R., to amend the Mineral Leasing Act relating to oil shale claims, subject to a rule.

On Friday, May 26, the House will not be in session during the Memorial Day district work period. At the close of the week's business, the House will adjourn until 12 noon on Wednesday, May 31. Conference reports may be brought up at any time in the further program.

Mr. GINGRICH. I wonder if I might ask the distinguished majority leader a couple of questions. First I note the absence of the FSX issue, and I wonder if that might be on the calendar for next week.

Mr. FOLEY. I am happy the gentleman mentioned that. That may well be on the calendar for next week. We have not a clear designation yet with respect to that, and any action that might be taken by the Committee on Foreign Affairs, but that is absolutely correct, and we may have a vote on FSX.

Mr. GINGRICH. Just for the purpose of those colleagues who were not part of our earlier discussion, when the dire emergency supplemental comes up, since it will not have the veterans' money, could the majority leader just explain for a moment what will be in that bill in the context of that rule in that vote?

Mr. FOLEY. We anticipate there will be one rule which will encompass both that bill and the bill involving the transfer of funds for drug-fighting purposes for two separate bills. The first bill, H.R. 2072, will most likely be the text of the unanimous-consent request offered by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations yesterday. It will include such things as funds for refugee programs, for the provision for forest fire fighting. There will be funds for guaranteed student loans, Federal employment benefits and trade adjustment assistance, international peace keeping, Jewish refugee assistance and some funds for the homeless and funds for drug enforcement.

Mr. GINGRICH. Let me just say, first of all, I very much appreciate this week having worked with the majority leadership and having gotten the veterans' supplemental through today. I think it was an important step.

I would note that because of the unusual nature of next week's rule and the two initiatives that are being offered on the dire emergency supplemental and the proposal to transfer funds for antidrug initiatives which, as I understand it, represents a bill which has not yet been written or introduced, House Resolution blank at this stage, I would just say to my colleagues on the Democratic side there may well be one or two initiatives that come to the Rules Committee at the same time in an effort to find equal opportunity, and I might say for floor action on ideas during the week.

Mr. FOLEY. I thank the gentleman for that information.

Mr. GINGRICH. I thank the leader and look forward to seeing him next week.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, MAY 22, 1989

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today, it adjourn to meet at noon on Monday next.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent the business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday next.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

HOUR OF MEETING ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns on Tuesday, May 23, 1989, it adjourn to meet at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, May 24, 1989.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

THE USE OF SNIFFER DOGS AT AIRPORTS—AN UPDATE ON AIDS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NEAL). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BURTON] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I have two issues that I would like to touch on briefly today. I will not take the entire 60 minutes so that those who are still in the Chamber can get out of here and get to their homes or wherever they have to go.

First of all, we have a real problem with the possibility that a terrorist might get on a U.S. aircraft at one of our international airports and blow it up. We have had occasions where this has occurred at foreign airports, but we have not yet experienced it here in the United States.

In order to ward off this possibility, I and a number of other Members of Congress have suggested that some measures be taken by the Federal Aviation Administration to make sure that this does not happen. One inexpensive way to head off this eventuality is to train sniffer dogs that have the ability to detect Semtex and other plastic explosives before they get on an aircraft. They use these sniffer dogs at many of our State Department offices around the world, and they use them behind the scenes to check luggage at many of our airports, but they do not use them at the gates that passengers go through to get on an aircraft. In my view, we ought to train teams of trainers and sniffer dogs and policemen to be at these aircraft entranceways to check hand-carried-on luggage that goes on the aircraft and that, therefore, is not subject to scrutiny behind the scenes.

The FAA has come to my office and talked to me, and they have talked to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR] and others and have said that they believe this would cause some problems for them in that the dogs might scare passengers, and there is a possibility that the dogs might bite passengers. And they point out that the dogs can only be used for a specified period of time before they are worn out and then have to rest before they go back through another cycle.

Now, my answers to their criticisms are as follows: First of all, we could put muzzles on dogs that are loose-fitting enough so they can still use their tongues and their sniffing devices so they could detect these plastic explosives. So that argument does not hold water. The second thing I would say to them is that people see dogs all the time. They see the seeing-eye dogs, they see dogs in yards and on the streets, and people are used to that. And if they know that it is for their own safety that these dogs are going to be at the airports, in my view they will not object to them.

The third thing is that the dogs do have a limited period of time that they can detect these plastic explosives, maybe 30 to 45 minutes. But their being there, just being on the premises would be a deterrent as far as allowing these terrorists to get on planes with plastic explosives. If you were a terrorist and you were going through a metal-detecting device on a plane and you saw that dog there, I think you would be very discouraged. You would be very concerned that you would be detected and you might be arrested and go to jail immediately. So I think the deterrent effect of having these sniffer dogs at airports is very, very important, and I criticize very strongly the Federal Aviation Administration for trying to stop the training and the utilization of these sniffer dogs at our airports.

Sometime in the future some terrorist is going to get on a plane and blow it up here in the United States. We can avoid that to a large degree, I believe, by using sniffer dogs and other technologies. There are new technologies coming on board which would detect a plastic explosive device that one would walk through, like a metal-detecting device, but those are 2 to 3 years away, and in the interim period we have no protection. That is why these sniffer dogs are so vitally important to the security of the air-traveling public, and every Member of this body and the other body ought to be concerned that there is no way to detect plastic explosives right now in hand-carried-on luggage.

That is why these sniffer dogs are so important, and I urge my colleagues to contact the FAA and ask them to drop their opposition to the training of sniffer dogs for this purpose.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I am happy to yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman has raised a very important question on the floor. Obviously, the American public is looking at us to be very, very vigilant with regard to terrorist activities and plastic explosives.

The gentleman, I think, makes a good interim suggestion until we do have appropriate technology to take care of this problem. I want to thank the gentleman for his statement here on the floor.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his contribution.

I would just like to say also that these dogs would be a good adjunct to the new technology once it comes on line in 3 or 4 years. But in the short run I think it is a real deterrent to those terrorists or would-be terrorists who might want to get a plastic explosive device on an American airline.

Mr. Speaker, the other thing I want to talk about very briefly is the AIDS pandemic, a subject that has not been addressed by this body for some time. The people of this country have not really been as aware of what is going on as far as the AIDS epidemic is concerned as I think they should be, so I am going to give the Members some figures today that came straight from the Center for Disease Control so the American people and my colleagues will know what is going on vis-a-vis the AIDS epidemic.

In 1983 we had 4,200 cases of AIDS, people dead or dying of AIDS. One year later that figure had doubled to over 9,900; 1 year later it had more than doubled again to 20,000, and then 2 years later it went from 20,000 in 1985 to almost 50,000 in 1987. And now, from 1987 through the end of 1989, the projection is that there will be 122,000 dead or dying from the AIDS pandemic. So the figure is more than doubling every 2 years right now.

Now, if we would extrapolate this out to the year 1999, we would reach some startling figures. By the end of 1991, if this trend continues, we would have 250,000 people dead or dying, 250,000 up to 280,000. If the percentages continue as they have for the past 7 years, by 1993 we will have between 500,000 and 650,000 people dead or dying. By 1995 we will have a minimum of over 1 million dead or dying, up to 1.5 million. By 1997 that figure could be between 2 million and 3.5 million, and by 1999, 10 years from now, we could have 4 million to 8 million people dead or dying of AIDS in this country. And that does not include the number of people who are infected and walking around carrying the virus and who are able to communicate it to other human beings in this country.

The Center for Disease Control said 4 years ago that we had 1.5 million people infected and it was doubling every 1½ years. Based upon their projections back then, we would have somewhere between 6 million and 12 million people carrying the disease today, but they still maintain that we only have 1.5 million infections. I do not know how they are coming up with that figure. They must be pulling it out of the sky. But the fact of the matter is that we must have more than 1.5 million if they said they had that many 4 years ago.

Why is this a big cause of concern? Well, obviously because we have loved ones we are concerned about. We are concerned about our children who are sexually active. We need to be concerned about them. A study that was conducted last September by the Center for Disease Control showed that 800,000 young men between the ages of 18 and 44 had 10 or more sexual partners in a year. We have heard on television and through reports that the way to stop the AIDS pandemic is through education. We have been educating people on television with pretty explicit commercials for some time now, and yet the study shows that 800,000 young men in this country had 10 or more sexual partners last year, and they are doing it each and every year. This means that the AIDS epidemic is continuing to spread in a very rapid way, but we do not know how far it has gone or what the extent of it is.

How are we going to find out? I have been advocating now for 4 years that we have a uniform testing program across this country. We do not want to violate people's civil rights, we want to make sure that people keep their jobs and their health insurance and everything else, and we want to make sure there is not discrimination, but the only way to get a handle on this epidemic is to know who has it, how it is being transmitted, who is spreading it, and where it is spreading most rapidly, and if there are any other ways it is being spread other than conventional ways, we need to find out about that as well. The only way to find that out is through a routine testing program.

We in this country, at the Center for Disease Control and at Health and Human Services, are walking around with our heads in a sack, and the epidemic continues to increase.

□ 1340

Mr. Speaker, I have a daughter who is 16, a daughter who is 25, and a boy who is 14, and I talk to them about the risk of AIDS all the time. Hopefully the education and information I am giving them is going to help, but we have millions and millions of young people in this country who are going on their merry way not realizing the dangers that face them, and the epidemic is spreading, and it is going to spread in an exponential manner unless we do something about it, and that is why a mandatory testing program is absolutely essential.

Mr. Speaker, people say, "Well, we can't do that. We haven't done it before."

We have done it before, Mr. Speaker. When I was in grade school, everybody was tested for tuberculosis. We had the Wassermann test for syphilis. We have had a lot of tests in the past for diseases that threatened the population of this country, and there has never been a disease that threatens this continent, this country, like the AIDS pandemic.

Millions of people are going to die, and millions more are going to be carrying this disease and spreading it unless we do something about it in a very, very quick timeframe.

If my figures are accurate; that is, that we have around 5 to 6 million infected right now, then this disease is pretty much out of control. The incubation period for AIDS at first was thought to be 1 year, then 2 years, then 3 years. Now most scientists agree that the incubation period, that period that a person can carry the disease and not even know they have it, runs from 7 to as high as 20 years or more. That means a person that looks perfectly normal, healthy, has no manifestation of the disease and can communicate it to another human being for up to 20 years. They can be a walking epidemic.

Mr. Speaker, the one thing about testing is, once we find out if a person has the disease, we can tell them, "You have the disease. You can no longer have sexual contact with people outside the AIDS community because you will be in effect killing them if you do that. It will be as bad as shooting them with a gun."

Then, Mr. Speaker, we would have to have a mechanism to enforce that, so, therefore, we need an entire program to deal with the AIDS pandemic, but the first and most important thing that we have to do is have a testing program.

I have talked to a lot of my colleagues in the past, and nobody seems to listen in this place. Nobody seems to listen in this place about the AIDS pandemic and the spread of it, but listen to these figures one more time because this is not baloney.

We have gone from 4,200 cases in 1983, to 9,900 in 1984, to 20,000 in 1985, to 50,000 in 1987, to 122,000 at the end of this year. That means we are going to have a quarter of a million, at least, in 1991, a half a million in 1993, and a million in 1995 minimum, and it will probably be more like a million and a half. In 1997 we will have 2½ to 3½ million. In 1999 we will have between 4 and 8 million people dying in this country, and we are fiddling while Rome burns.

Mr. Speaker, we need to protect people's civil rights; I agree with that, but I say to my colleagues that the most important and overriding issue is the health of this Nation, and until we start a testing program this disease is going to continue to spread, and it is going to wipe out a lot of people in this country.

I want to tell my colleagues one more thing before I close, and that is that in the 14th century, 1347 to 1350, 25 to 50 million people in Europe were wiped out by the bubonic plague. Now it can happen. It has happened before in history, and it will happen again unless we get a handle on this.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to think long and hard about a mandatory testing program along with a complete program to deal with this crisis because every day we wait more people are condemned to dying.

NATIONAL LITERACY DAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. PAYNE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be able to introduce a resolution to designate July 2, 1989, as National Literacy Day. For the past 3 years Mr. FLORIO had introduced this resolution and many of my colleagues joined in as cosponsors. The resolution was eventually enacted and Congress was able to bring attention to the plight of more than 27 million Americans who lack the basic skills necessary to function in today's ever changing, technological society.

Today more than 27 million adults cannot complete a job application, read a newspaper, comprehend a bus or train schedule or understand a warning label on a bottle of medicine. The Department of Education estimates that more than 2.3 million more illiterates including high school dropouts, unlettered pass-along graduates and some immigrants, are added to that list every year.

However, the problem has not been confined to those groups of dropouts or disadvantaged minority group members, although they represent the highest number. Increasingly, we are discovering that working members of mainstream American society are either totally illiterate or unable to read at the level presumably required by their job or of their position in society.

Our Nation's competitiveness is being eroded by the presence of millions of Americans who are functionally illiterate. The product of these deficiencies is being acutely displayed in the work place by citizens who cannot comprehend simple manuals or operate equipment. Consequently, the total cost of the errors, accidents, and missed opportunities in business now exceeds $225 billion annually.

In 1964, John Kenneth Galbraith wrote that:

People are the common denominator of progress. So * * * no improvement is possible with unimproved people, and advance is certain when people are liberated and educated. It would be wrong to dismiss the importance of roads, railroads, power plants, mills and other familiar furniture of economic development * * * but we are coming to realize * * * that there is a certain sterility in economic monuments that stand alone in sea of illiteracy. Conquest of illiteracy comes first.

This statement is no less truer today than in the 1960's.

Equally important, however, is the societal cost. The lack of reading, writing, and mathematical skills leads to resignation, despair, and, in some cases, contributes to crime, alcohol and drug abuse, unemployment, and economic dependence. More specifically, the cost includes welfare expenditures for the children of adults who lack the skills necessary to obtain gainful employment, necessary law enforcement to slow the growing underground economy generated by the individuals who cannot compete on the open job market, and consequently, the cost includes the maintenance of prisons that are the eventual end for those persons. It is a cost that is too high to pay.

Essentially, Mr. Speaker, illiteracy has become a social tax. It is a tax that, while falling directly on the backs of the millions of illiterate individuals, has, in turn, exacted the very strength of our Nation.

I would, therefore, urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the need to eradicate the scourge of illiteracy by cosponsoring this resolution. Because as a man wiser than myself once said, "It is the fate of this country that depends upon the education of its people."

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my special order today.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NEAL of North Carolina). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. STANGELAND (at the request of Mr. MICHEL), for today, on account of illness.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. SMITH of Mississippi) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. WALKER, for 60 minutes, today.

Mr. SOLOMON, for 60 minutes, today.

Mr. McEWEN, for 60 minutes, today.

(The following Member (at the request of Mr. BURTON of Indiana) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. BURTON of Indiana, for 60 minutes, today.

(The following Member (at the request of Mr. KLECZKA to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. MILLER of California, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. WISE, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. ANNUNZIO, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. SKELTON, for 30 minutes, on May 24.

Mr. SKELTON, for 30 minutes, on May 25.

Mr. ASPIN, for 5 minutes, today.
(The following Members (at the request of Mr. SMITH of Iowa) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. FASCELL, for 5 minutes, today.
Mr. LAFALCE, for 10 minutes, today.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

By unanimous consent, permission to revise and extend remarks was granted to:

Mr. BEREUTER and to include extraneous material notwithstanding the fact that it exceeds 2 pages of the RECORD and it is estimated by the Public Printer to cost $1,694.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. SMITH of Mississippi) and to include extraneous matter:)

Mr. CAMPBELL.
Mr. CRANE.
Mr. SPENCE.
Mr. FIELDS.
Mr. BARTON of Texas.
Mr. KOLBE.
Mrs. MARTIN of Illinois.
Mr. SHUSTER.
Mr. SMITH of Mississippi.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. BURTON of Indiana) and to include extraneous matter:)

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire.
Mr. SHUMWAY.
Mr. RITTER.
Mr. HANSEN.
Mr. LENT.
Mr. DAVIS.
Mr. BURTON of Indiana.
Mr. BUECHNER.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. KLECZKA) and to include extraneous matter:)

Mr. DYMALLY.
Mr. FASCELL in two instances.
Mr. MONTGOMERY.
Mr. LANTOS.
Mr. SKELTON.
Mr. LEVIN of Michigan.
Mr. ASPIN.
Mr. MARKEY.

JOINT RESOLUTION PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. ANNUNZIO, from the Committee on House Administration, reported that that committee did on this day present to the President, for his approval, a Joint Resolution of the House of the following title:

H.J. Res. 170. Joint resolution designating May 1989, as "National Digestive Disease Awareness Month."

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. COELHO. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 1 o'clock and 49 minutes p.m.), under its previous order the House adjourned until Monday, May 22, 1989, at 12 noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

1225. A letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation to amend the volunteers in the National Forests Act of 1972 to permit volunteers to be considered employees under 31 U.S.C. 3721; to the Committee on Agriculture.

1226. A letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation to amend the Housing Act of 1949 to extend through fiscal year 1992 appropriation authorizations for certain housing assistance programs conducted by the Secretary of Agriculture under title V of the Housing Act of 1949, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 1110; to the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs.

1227. A letter from the Director, Office of Management and Budget, transmitting the annual report of activities under the Freedom of Information Act during calendar year 1988, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(d); to the Committee on Government Operations.

1228. A letter from the Deputy General Counsel, Department of Defense, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation to modify the tax treatment of gain on sales of residences by certain members of the Armed Forces; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

1229. A letter from the General Counsel, Department of the Treasury, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation to authorize appropriations for the Department of the Treasury for unforeseen emergencies of a confidential nature, pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 1110; jointly, to the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs and Ways and Means.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. UDALL: Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. H.R. 932. A bill to provide for the settlement of land claims of the Puyallup Tribe of Indians in the State of Washington, and for other purposes; with amendments (Rept. 101-57). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

In compliance with Public Law 601, 79th Congress, title III, Regulation of Lobbying Act, section 308(b), which provides as follows:

(b) All information required to be filed under the provisions of this section with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate shall be compiled by said Clerk and Secretary, acting jointly, as soon as practicable after the close of the calendar quarter with respect to which such information is filed and shall be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate jointly submit their report of the compilation required by said law and have included all registrations and quarterly reports received.

REGISTRATIONS

The following registrations were submitted for the third calendar quarter 1989:

(NOTE.—The form used for reporting is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective headings. This page (Page 1) is designed to supply identifying data.)

PLEASE RETURN 1 ORIGINAL TO: THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, OFFICE OF RECORDS AND REGISTRATION, 1036 LONGWORTH HOUSE
OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20515

PLEASE RETURN 1 ORIGINAL TO: THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE, OFFICE OF PUBLIC RECORDS, 232 HART SENATE OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

PLACE AN "X" BELOW THE APPROPRIATE LETTER OR FIGURE IN THE BOX AT THE RIGHT OF THE "REPORT" HEADING BELOW:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

"QUARTERLY" REPORT: To indicate which one of the four calendar quarters is covered by this Report, place an "X" below the appropriate figure. Fill out both page 1 and page 2 and as many additional pages as may be required. The first additional page should be numbered as page "3," and the rest of such pages should be "4," "5," "6," etc. Preparation and filing in accordance with instructions will accomplish compliance with all quarterly reporting requirements of the Act.

IDENTIFICATION NUMBER

NOTE on ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee," state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
 - (ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer," write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
- (i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
 - (ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

☐ CHECK IF ADDRESS IS DIFFERENT THAN PREVIOUSLY REPORTED

Is this an Amendment?

☐ YES ☐ NO

NOTE on ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE on ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) description, (b) quantity distributed, (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and, if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out items "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.¶

QUARTERLY REPORTS*

The following quarterly reports were submitted for the first calendar quarter 1989:

(NOTE.—The form used for reporting is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective headings. This page (Page 1) is designed to supply identifying data, and Page 2 deals with financial data.)

PLEASE RETURN 1 ORIGINAL TO: THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, OFFICE OF RECORDS AND REGISTRATION, 1036 LONGWORTH HOUSE OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20515

PLEASE RETURN 1 ORIGINAL TO: THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE, OFFICE OF PUBLIC RECORDS, 232 HART SENATE OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

PLACE AN "X" BELOW THE APPROPRIATE LETTER OR FIGURE IN THE BOX AT THE RIGHT OF THE "REPORT" HEADING BELOW:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

Year: 19

REPORT

PURSUANT TO FEDERAL REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

P	QUARTER

(Mark one square only)

IDENTIFICATION NUMBER

Is this an Amendment?

☐ YES ☐ NO

NOTE on ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
 - (i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
 - (ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

☐ CHECK IF ADDRESS IS DIFFERENT THAN PREVIOUSLY REPORTED

NOTE on ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE on ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) description, (b) quantity distributed, (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed.)

STATEMENT OF VERIFICATION

[Omitted in printing]

NOTE on ITEM "D."—(a) IN GENERAL. The term "contribution" includes anything of value. When an organization or individual uses printed or duplicated matter in a campaign attempting to influence legislation, money received by such organization or individual—for such printed or duplicated matter—is a "contribution." "The term 'contribution' includes a gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money, or anything of value, and includes a contract, promise, or agreement, whether or not legally enforceable, to make a contribution"—§ 302(a) of the Lobbying Act.

(b) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN EMPLOYER.—(i) In general. Item "D" is designed for the reporting of all receipts from which expenditures are made, or will be made, in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Receipts of Business Firms and Individuals.—A business firm (or individual) which is subject to the Lobbying Act by reason of expenditures which it makes in attempting to influence legislation—but which has no funds to expend except those which are available in the ordinary course of operating a business not connected in any way with the influencing of legislation—will have no receipts to report, even though it does have expenditures to report.

(iii) Receipts of Multi-purpose Organizations.—Some organizations do not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Such organizations make such expenditures out of a general fund raised by dues, assessments, or other contributions. The percentage of the general fund which is used for such expenditures indicates the percentage of dues, assessments, or other contributions which may be considered to have been paid for that purpose. Therefore, in reporting receipts, such organizations may specify what that percentage is, and report their dues, assessments, and other contributions on that basis. However, each contributor of $500 or more is to be listed, regardless of whether the contribution was made solely for legislative purposes.

(c) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN AGENT OR EMPLOYEE.—(i) In general. In the case of many employees, all receipts will come under Items "D 5" (received for services) and "D 12" (expense money and reimbursements). In the absence of a clear statement to the contrary, it will be presumed that your employer is to reimburse you for all expenditures which you make in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Employer as Contributor of $500 or More.—When your contribution from your employer (in the form of salary, fee, etc.) amounts to $500 or more, it is not necessary to report such contribution under "D 13" and "D 14," since the amount has already been reported under "D 5," and the name of the "employer" has been given under Item "B" on page 1 of this report.

D. RECEIPTS (INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS AND LOANS):

Fill in every blank. If the answer to any numbered item is "None," write "NONE" in the space following the number.

QUARTERLY REPORTS*

*All alphanumeric characters and monetary amounts refer to receipts and expenditures on page 2, paragraphs D and E of the Quarterly Report Form.

The following reports for the fourth calendar quarter of 1988 were received too late to be included in the published reports for that quarter:

(NOTE.—The form used for report is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective headings. This page (Page 1) is designed to supply identifying data, and Page 2 deals with financial data.)

PLEASE RETURN 1 ORIGINAL TO: THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, OFFICE OF RECORDS AND REGISTRATION, 1036 LONGWORTH HOUSE
OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20515

PLEASE RETURN 1 ORIGINAL TO: THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE, OFFICE OF PUBLIC RECORDS, 232 HART SENATE OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

PLACE AN "X" BELOW THE APPROPRIATE LETTER OR FIGURE IN THE BOX AT THE RIGHT OF THE "REPORT" HEADING BELOW:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

"QUARTERLY" REPORT: To indicate which one of the four calendar quarters is covered by this Report, place an "X" below the appropriate figure. Fill out both page 1 and page 2 and as many additional pages as may be required. The first additional page should be numbered as page "3," and the rest of such pages should be "4," "5," "6," etc. Preparation and filing in accordance with instructions will accomplish compliance with all quarterly reporting requirements of the Act.

Is this an Amendment?
☐ YES ☐ NO

NOTE on ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee," state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer," write "None" in answer to Item "B".

(b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:

- (i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
- (ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

☐ CHECK IF ADDRESS IS DIFFERENT THAN PREVIOUSLY REPORTED

NOTE on ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE on ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(c).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) description, (b) quantity distributed, (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed.)

STATEMENT OF VERIFICATION

NOTE on ITEM "D."—(a) IN GENERAL. The term "contribution" includes anything of value. When an organization or individual uses printed or duplicated matter in a campaign attempting to influence legislation, money received by such organization or individual—for such printed or duplicated matter—is a "contribution." "The term 'contribution' includes a gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money, or anything of value, and includes a contract, promise, or agreement, whether or not legally enforceable, to make a contribution"—§ 302(a) of the Lobbying Act.

(b) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN EMPLOYER.—(i) In general. Item "D" is designed for the reporting of all receipts from which expenditures are made, or will be made, in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Receipts of Business Firms and Individuals.—A business firm (or individual) which is subject to the Lobbying Act by reason of expenditures which it makes in attempting to influence legislation—but which has no funds to expend except those which are available in the ordinary course of operating a business not connected in any way with the influencing of legislation—will have no receipts to report, even though it does have expenditures to report.

(iii) Receipts of Multi-purpose Organizations.—Some organizations do not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Such organizations make such expenditures out of a general fund raised by dues, assessments, or other contributions. The percentage of the general fund which is used for such expenditures indicates the percentage of dues, assessments, or other contributions which may be considered to have been paid for that purpose. Therefore, in reporting receipts, such organizations may specify what that percentage is, and report their dues, assessments, and other contributions on that basis. However, each contributor of $500 or more is to be listed, regardless of whether the contribution was made solely for legislative purposes.

(c) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN AGENT OR EMPLOYEE.—(i) In general. In the case of many employees, all receipts will come under Items "D 5" (received for services) and "D 12" (expense money and reimbursements). In the absence of a clear statement to the contrary, it will be presumed that your employer is to reimburse you for all expenditures which you make in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Employer as Contributor of $500 or More.—When your contribution from your employer (in the form of salary, fee, etc.) amounts to $500 or more, it is not necessary to report such contribution under "D 13" and "D 14," since the amount has already been reported under "D 5," and the name of the "employer" has been given under Item "B" on page 1 of this report.

D. RECEIPTS (INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS AND LOANS):

Fill in every blank. If the answer to any numbered item is "None," write "NONE" in the space following the number.

10. $.....Expended during previous Quarters of calendar year
11. $.....TOTAL from Jan. 1 through this Quarter (Add "9" and "10")

Loans Made to Others—"The term 'expenditure' includes a . . . loan . . ."—§ 302(b).

12. $.....TOTAL now owed to person filing
13. $.....Lent to others during this Quarter
14. $.....Repayments received during this Quarter

15. Recipients of Expenditures of $10 or More.....

If there were no single expenditures of $10 or more, please so indicate by using the word "NONE".

In the case of expenditures made during this Quarter by, or on behalf of, the person filing: Attach plain sheets of paper approximately the size of this page and tabulate data as to expenditures under the following heading: "Amount," "Date or Dates," "Name and Address of Recipient," "Purpose." Prepare such tabulation in accordance with the following example:

Amount	Date or Dates	Name and Address of Recipient—Purpose
$1,750.00	7-11:	Roe Printing Co., 3214 Blank Ave., St. Louis, Mo.—Printing and mailing circulars on the "Marshbanks Bill."
$2,400.00	7-15, 8-15, 9-15:	Britten & Blaten, 3127 Gremlin Bldg., Washington, D.C.—Public relations service at $800.00 per month.
